PREFACE.

In presenting this history and genealogy of the ancient and baronial family of Cuthbert of Castle Hill, Inverness, Scotland, who were styled "King Barons," from whom descend many in South Carolina and Georgia, the author feels that he has accomplished a work which will be a valuable contribution to future generations.

Many thanks are due to Mr. and Mrs. George Whitfield Brown, of Washington, Mrs. Wm. Nathaniel Heyward, of Hardeeville, S. C., James Barnwell Heyward, Esq., from whose manuscript has been taken much invaluable data; Rev. G. Seignelay Cuthbert of St. John's Lodge, Clewer, Windsor, England; Miss Eugenia J. Cuthbert, of the Philadelphia branch of the name, who descends from the great McIntosh family of Scotland and Georgia, to the authors of the histories of South Carolina and Georgia, and also to other sources the author is much indebted.

There seems no doubt that the family of the Honorable Seth John Cuthbert, of Georgia, whose two sons, Alfred Cuthbert, U. S. Senator, and John Cuthbert, Member of Congress, is related to the Cuthberts of Castle Hill, although there is no evidence to show that this branch are heirs of the line. The line of Dr. James Cuthbert, Jr., of Georgia, who was of the eldest branch, seems to have become extinct, and thus it would appear that Lucius Montrose Cuthbert, Esq., a distinguished lawyer and citizen of Denver, Colorado, is the apparent heir and Baron of Castle Hill. To this gentleman the author is especially indebted for much valuable information.

This Work is Dedicated to
Lucius Montrose Cuthbert, Esq.,
Mrs. George W. Brown.
James Barnwell Heyward, Esq., and to
My Kinswoman,
Miss Hilda Maud Paterson
of Birkwood, Banchory,
Scotland.

The ancient and baronial family of Cuthbert, lords of Castle Hill and proprietors of Drakies, was one of the leading families of Inverness, Scotland, and we find the Cuthberts furnishing Provosts and Bailies of the Burgh, Town Clerks, Councillors, Aldermen and Commissioners to the town; and among them we see Alexander, George, John and William Cuthbert, Provosts of Inverness, the highest position in the city, and among the Bailies, or Magistrates, Alexander, James, John and Thomas Cuthbert, and James, Town Clerk of Inverness; John Cuthbert, Councillor, and John Cuthbert, Alderman; and a John, Commissioner; and besides these were the Lords of the Auld Castle, and the barons of Castlehill, and the Lairds of Drakies; and St. Cuthbert was of this line, it is said. Besides the above we find George Cuthbert, one of the Commanders of the forces of the King at Harlaw; between Donald of the Isles and the Earl of Mar; a celebrated battle which decided as to whether the Lowlander or the Celt was to be the ruling power thereafter.

It is quite interesting to see the long array of names of this family which was among the leading ones in the North of Scotland and in France, and who in the New World assisted in laying the foundation of this great country.

*This is according to Burke, but the arms of the Barons of Castle Hill have certain quarterings as shown in illustration.

The following is a true and authentic account of the various positions held by this eminent line:

Jean Baptiste Colbert, Minister of Finance and of the Navy, time of Louis XIV. He was Marquis of Seignelay and descended from the Cuthberts of Scotland, and had his pedigree attested to by the Scotch Parliament, General Lachlan Cuthbert of the French Army, Alexander Cuthbert, known as Abbe Cuthbert in the French Church, Seignelay Cuthbert, Bishop of Rodez, in France and Grand Vicar of Toulouse, George Cuthbert, Officer of British Artillery at siege of Belle Isle, Brittany, John Cuthbert, Officer in English Army under General Wolfe, killed at Louisburg, 20th July, 1758, and George Cuthbert, Provost Marshall General of Jamaica.

In South Carolina we find Captain William Cuthbert, Commander of the "Fortune Frigate," appointed one of the Judges to try pirates, and John Cuthbert who received a patent, granted for certain agricultural implements, and General John Alexander Cuthbert, Colonel James Cuthbert, and Doctors Edward, James, Lucius and Thomas L. Cuthbert, and in Georgia, among the signers of the Creek treaty of 1739, as witnesses, George Cuthbert of Drakies, and John Cuthbert of Inverness, and further on we find John Cuthbert, Esq., of Drakies, planter, Captain of the Rangers, and among the signers of the District Congress of 1775, at Darien, Ga., Isaac and A. Daniel Cuthbert, John Cuthbert, member of Provincial Congress 1775, Captain Alexander Cuthbert of Continental line, Georgia Brigade, and Lieutenant Daniel Cuthbert of Georgia State Troops, and Honorable Major Seth John Cuthbert, Secretary and Member of Council of Safety, Acting Governor or President pro tempore of Executive Council, his grandsons, Honorable Alfred Cuthbert, U. S. Senator and John Cuthbert, Member of Congress, and in 1797 we have record of Drakies plantation on Savannah River and also find the town of Cuthbert in Georgia. The descendants of this family may well be proud of the long array of names of this ancient and noble line, who in both hemispheres have always been to the fore and have occupied positions of prominence in Church and State. This family descends in direct line from the Lords of Castlehill, the Lords Fraser, Lindsay, Erroll, Crichton, Somerville, Glamis, Doune, Montgomery, and from the Duke of Albany, Robert the Bruce, and Edward III of England, and from the Stewarts, Earls of Atholl and of Lennox, Gordons, Earls of Huntly, Campbells, Earls of Argyll, Douglasses, Earls of Morton, Earls of Douglas, and Dukes of Touraine in France, Earls of Ross, Sinclairs, Earls of Orkney and Caithness, and the families of Baillie of Lammington, the Fentons, Rattrays, Ross of Balnagown, Hay of Erroll, MacDonald of the Isles, McIntosh and others, and in South Carolina and Georgia we find this prominent family connected and related to the old families of these States, such as Hazzard, Heyward, Barnwell, Middleton, Fuller, Fraser, Stobo, Williamson, Guerard, Screven, Elliott, Prescott, Bacot and others; and in Georgia, to Bryan, Clay, Noble Jones, Irvine, Bulloch, Graham, Bolton, Stirk, d'Antignac, Turpin and others, and thus we see this eminent family taking part in both worlds.

We now give what is believed to be the correct descent of this family and follow it up by a copy of a copy of the history of the Cuthberts in Scotland, from one belonging to Hon. James Cuthbert, of Montreal, and attested to by the Lion King at Arms, and also the lines of descent in America taken from reliable sources. George Cuthbert of Castle Hill commanded the forces raised by the town of Inverness at the battle of Harlaw, 1411, against the rebellious Donald, Lord of the Isles, whose standard he seized.

He had John Cuthbert, who had William Cuthbert, of 1478, whose great grandson George Cuthbert, Esq., of 1548, had John Cuthbert, Baron of Castle Hill of 1593, who had

William Cuthbert, Baron of Castle Hill, who married Janet McKenzie, and had John Cuthbert, Baron of Castle Hill, who married Mary Cuthbert, daughter of George Cuthbert of Drakies, and had:

- I. George Cuthbert m. Magdalen Fraser, daughter of Sir James Fraser of Brae.
- II. John Cuthbert, m. Mary McLean.
- III. David Cuthbert.

The following is a sketch of the noble families from which the family of Cuthbert descend through Sir James Fraser of Brae, McIntosh of Holm, and Hay of Park, of the Erroll line:

Gilbert de Fraser had among others a third son, who beside others had Bernard Fraser, who married Mary Ogilvie, daughter of Gilchrist, Thane of Angus, by his wife Marjory, daughter of Prince Henry, son of the King, and sister of King William the Lion and Malcolm, and had Sir Gilbert Fraser of Oliver Castle, whose younger son, Sir Andrew Fraser, married Beatrix and had an elder son, Simon Fraser, who married Margaret, daughter of Earl of Orkney, by a daughter of Graham of Lovat, and had a second son, Hugh Fraser, Lord Lovat, who married Isabella, daughter of Sir David Wemyss of Wemyss, and had Hugh Fraser, first Lord, who married the daughter, an heiress, of William Fenton of Beaufort, and had among others, Hugh Fraser second Lord, who married Lady Janet, daughter of Thomas Dunbar, Earl of Moray, and had Hugh Fraser, third Lord, who married Margaret Lyon, daughter of Lord Glamis, Master of the Horse to the King, and had Sir Thomas, fourth Lord Fraser, who married Janet, daughter of Sir Alexander Gordon, of Auchindoir and Midmar, in Aberdeenshire, niece of George Gordon, Earl of Huntly and had Hugh Fraser, fifth Lord, who married second Janet, daughter of Walter Ross of Balnagowne, descended of the Earls of Ross, and had Alexander Fraser, sixth Lord, who married Janet, daughter of Sir John Campbell of Cawdor, second son of the Earl of Argyll, and had Hugh Fraser, seventh Lord, who married Lady Elizabeth Stewart, daughter of John, fourth Earl of Atholl, and Chancellor of Scotland, and had Sir Simon Fraser, eighth Lord Fraser, seventh of Lovat, who married secondly March, 1596, Jean Stewart, daughter of James Stewart, Lord Doune, and had Sir James Fraser of Brae, who married Beatrix, daughter of Wemyss of Fairkley, and had among others, Magdalene Fraser, who married George Cuthbert of Castle Hill.

Hugh Fraser, seventh Lord, married Lady Elizabeth Stewart, daughter of John, fourth Earl of Atholl, and Elizabeth, daughter of George Gordon, fourth Earl of Huntly, and Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Robert Lord Keith by Elizabeth Douglas, daughter of Earl of Morton, son of Alexander Gordon, third Earl of Huntly, who married Lady Johana or Janet Stewart, eldest daughter of Sir John Stewart, of Balveny, first Earl of Atholl (uterine brother of King James II), who married first Lady Margaret, daughter of Archibald Douglas, fifth Earl of Douglas, and Duke of Touraine in France. The third Earl of Huntly was son of George Gordon, second Earl of Huntly, by Lady Elizabeth Hay, daughter of the third Earl of Erroll, and the second Earl of Huntly was son of Alexander de Seton, Lord of Gordon, and first Earl of Huntly, who married Elizabeth, daughter of William, Lord Chrichton. The fourth Earl of Atholl was son of John Stewart, third Earl, and Grizel, daughter of Sir John Rattray of Rattray, and the third Earl of Atholl, was the son of John Stewart, second Earl of Atholl, who married Lady Mary Campbell, third daughter of Archibald, second Earl of Argyll, and the second Earl of Atholl was son of Sir John Stewart of Balveny, first Earl of Atholl by his second marriage to Lady Eleanor Sinclair, daughter of William Sinclair, Earl of Orkney and Caithness, and the first Earl of Atholl was son of Sir John Stewart, the Black Knight of Lorn, who married Joanna, Dowager of King James I, daughter of John, Earl of Somerset, son of John, Duke of Lancaster, son of Edward the III of England. Hugh Fraser, sixth Lord Lovat and seventh Lord Fraser married Lady Elizabeth, daughter of John, fourth Earl of Atholl as above, and had Sir Simon Fraser, seventh Lord of Lovat, eighth Lord Fraser, who married second, 4th April, 1596, Jean Stewart, daughter of Sir James Stewart, Lord Doune, who married January 11, 1563, Lady Margaret Campbell, daughter of Archibald, fourth Earl of Argyll, who married second, 21st April, 1541, Margaret, daughter of William Graham, Earl of Menteith. Sir James Stewart, Lord Doune, was son of Sir James Stewart of Beath, who married Margaret, daughter of the third Lord Lindsay of Byres, and Sir James Stewart of Beath, was younger son of Andrew Stewart, second Lord Avondale.

ARGYLL.

Sir Duncan Campbell of Lochow married Marjory or Marcella Stewart, daughter of Robert, Duke of Albany, son of the King, and had Celestin or Archibald Campbell, who married first Elizabeth, daughter of John, third Lord Somerville, and had Colin Campbell, second Lord, who was created Earl of Argyll, 1457. He married Isabel or Elizabeth Stewart, one of the three daughters of John, Lord of Lorn, and had Archibald Campbell, second Earl of Argyll, who married Elizabeth Stewart, daughter of John, first Earl of Lennox, of the Stewart line, and had Celestin Campbell, third Earl of Argyll, who married Janet, daughter of Alexander Gordon, third Earl of Huntly, by Lady Johanna or Janet, daughter of Sir John Stewart of Balvany, first Earl of Atholl by his first marriage to Lady Margaret Douglas, daughter of Archibald, fifth Earl of Douglas, and Duke of Touraine in France. Celestin, third Earl of Argyll and Janet Gordon had Archibald Campbell, fourth Earl of Argyll, who married 21st April, 1541, Margaret, daughter of William Graham, third Earl of Menteith, and had Margaret Campbell, who married Sir James Stewart, Lord Doune, and had Jean Stewart, who married *Sir Simon Fraser, eighth Lord Fraser, and had among others Sir James Fraser of Brae, who married Beatrix, daughter of Wemyss of Fairkley and had among others Magdalen Fraser, who married George Cuthbert of Castle Hill.

LINDSAY OF BYRES.

Sir William Lindsay, fourth son of Sir David Lindsay of Crawford, married Christian, daughter of Sir William More of Abercorn, and had :

I. John, Lord Lindsay, who married a daughter of Robert, Lord Lorn, and had John, third Lord, who married a daughter of Sir William Baillie of Lamington and had besides others Margaret Lindsay, who married Sir James Stewart of Beath.

EARL OF LENNOX.

Sir Alexander Stewart of Dreghorn, second son of Sir James Stewart of Bonkyll, second son of Alexander, High Steward of Scotland, married _____ and had :

- I. Sir John Stewart of Dernley.
- II. Walter Stewart.
- III. Sir Alexander Stewart of Dernley, who married Janet, daughter and heiress of Sir William Keith of Galston, a younger son of the Marischal family and had :

Sir John Stewart of Dernley, who married, 1392, Elizabeth, second daughter of Duncan, Earl of Lennox, of the old line of Earls of Lennox, and had Sir Alan Stewart, who married Catharine, daughter of Sir William Seton of Seton, and had Sir John Stewart, first Earl of Stewart line, who married Margaret, daughter of Alexander, first Lord Montgomery, and had :

- I. Mathew, Second Earl.
- II. Lady Elizabeth Stewart, married Archibald, second Earl of Argyll.

KEITHS, EARLS MARISCHALS.

Sir William de Keith married Barbara de Seton and had :
 Sir Edward Great Marischal, who married Isabel de Keith and had Sir William, Great Marischal, who married Margaret Fraser, heiress of Cowie Durris, etc., and had Sir Robert, who married the heiress of Troup, and had Sir William Keith, Earl Marischal, who married and had William, second Earl, who married Mariot, daughter of Lord Erskine, and had William, third Earl Marischal, who married Lady Elizabeth Gordon, daughter of George, second Earl of Huntly, by Elizabeth, daughter of Earl of Erroll, and had Robert, Lord Keith, who married Lady Elizabeth, daughter of Earl of Morton, and had Elizabeth, who married George, fourth Earl of Huntly.

THE GORDON FAMILY.

The Gordons date back to the year 1093, to Adam de Gordon. His descendant, Sir Adam de Gordon, married Elizabeth Keith, daughter of Sir William de Keith, Great Marischal. His daughter, Elizabeth de Gordon, married Alexander, son of Sir William Seton, and had Sir Alexander de Seton, Lord of Gordon, created Earl of Huntly by King James II, who married third, Elizabeth, daughter of William, Lord Chrichton, and had George Gordon, second Earl of Huntly, who married Lady Elizabeth Hay, daughter of the Earl of Erroll, and had Alexander, third Earl of Huntly, who married Lady Janet Stewart, daughter of John, Earl of Atholl, by Lady Margaret Douglas, only daughter of Archibald, fifth Earl of Douglas, and Duke of Touraine, who married Euphemia, daughter of Sir Patrick Graham and Countess Euphemia of Stratherne. The fifth Earl of Douglas was son of Archibald, fourth Earl and Duke of Touraine by Princess Margaret, daughter of Robert III.

Alexander, third Earl of Huntly and Lady Janet Stewart had John, Lord Gordon, who married Margaret, daughter of King James IV, by Margaret, daughter of John, Lord Drummond, and had George, fourth Earl of Huntly, who married *Elizabeth, daughter of Robert, Lord Keith, sister of William, fourth Earl Marischal and had Elizabeth Gordon, who married John Stewart, fourth Earl of Atholl, and had Elizabeth Stewart, who married Hugh Fraser, seventh Lord and sixth of Lovat.

ROYAL DESCENT.

King James IV was son of King James III by Christian, daughter of Christian, King of Denmark, and King James III was son of King James II and Mary, daughter of Arnold, Duke of Gueldres, and King James II was son of King James I, by Lady Joanna de Beaufort, daughter of John, Earl of Somerset, son of John, Duke of Lancaster, by Katharine Swynford, daughter Sir Payne Roelt, and John, Duke of Lancaster, was son of Edward III of England. So we see that the Cuthberts descend from the Royal Houses of Scotland and England many times.

William Hay Bishop of Murray or Moray.

William de Haya married Juliana de Soulis, niece of Ranulph de Soulis, Lord of Liddesdale, and had William de Haya, ancestor of the Erroll family, who married

Eva and had Sir David Haya, who married Helena, daughter of Gilbert, Earl of Stratherne, and had Gilbert, who had Nicholas, who had Sir Gilbert Hay, constable of Scotland, who had Sir David Hay, who married a daughter of Sir John Keith, of Innerpeffer, and had Sir Thomas Hay, who married Elizabeth, daughter of King Robert II by Elizabeth More and had

- I. Sir William Hay, grandfather of Sir William Hay, first Earl of Erroll.
- II. Sir Gilbert Hay, ancestor of the Hays of Dronlaw, Park, and Dalgety, and from this line William Hay, Bishop of Moray, has descended, whose daughter, Jean Hay, married John Cuthbert of Castle Hill. Thus we see the Cuthberts descend through Hay from noble lines, and from the Earls of Stratherne, the Keiths and from Royalty.

“Right Rev. William Hay, D. D., of St. Andrews, of the family of Park, in Moray, was born February 17, 1647, died 1707, son of William Hay, A. M., master of the music school in old Aberdeen whom he succeeded about 1688. Was Minister of Perth and was consecrated Bishop of Moray, March 11, 1688, at St. Andrews. After he was deposed, he returned to the house of his son-in-law, John Cuthbert, where he died May 17, 1707. He married Mary, daughter of John Wemyss, parson of Rothes.”

We thus see that the Cuthberts and their descendants, the Heywards, Guerards, Browns of Washington, Elliotts, Trescotts, Bacots, and others descend from the Royal Houses of Scotland and England, and from the Lords Fraser, Doune, Lindsays of Byres, Montgomerys, Crichtons, and from the Earls of Atholl, Huntly, Argyll, Lennox, Douglas, Orkney, the family of Keith, Earls Marischal, Graham of Mentieth, and others in direct line of descent, and thus we see that many of our southern families have the best blood in their veins and easily prove their noble origin, for many of the cadets of very fine families settled in the South.

The following is the line of descent of Jean Baptiste Colbert, the celebrated minister of Louis XIV, as given by C. Fraser-McIntosh in his Invernessiana.

James Cuthbert married Lady Elizabeth Lyon of Glamis (descendant of Lord Glamis, son-in-law of Robert II) and had: George Cuthbert married Catharine Dunbar of Tarbat, and had James Cuthbert, who married Jean, daughter of Fraser of Foyers, and had George Cuthbert, who married daughter of Hugh Rose, Baron of Kilravock. His grandson Edward married Mary Lindsay of Edzell and was the father of Jean Baptiste Colbert of 1686.

(Lord Charles Edward Colbert, Marquis of Seignelay, and Secretary of State and Superintendent of His Majesty's affairs, and was also of this line of Cuthbert.)

A Chronological Account

Origin, Settlement, Armorial Bearing and Surname
of the Illustrious Family of Cuthbert of Castle Hill

Contracts and testimonials, under the hand and seal of the Lord Lyon, King of Armes in Scotland, of the illustrious extraction and descent of the honorable family of Castle Hill.

This copy for the Hon. James Cuthbert of Bert, great-grandchild to the last John Cuthbert of Castle Hill, except one.

A Chronological Account of the origin, settlement, armorial bearing and surname of the illustrious family of Cuthbert of Castlehill, in the County of Inverness, Scotland; the aforesaid name vulgarly called Cubbert and Colbert, and in the Erse language Qubert.

This illustrious family came originally from the County of the Northumbrians in the North of England, when it was about the year of Christ 700. Alfred reigned then in that country, which made one of the Kingdoms of the Heptarchy, and had lately embraced Christianity by the Bishop of Lindisfarne (afterwards called Holy Island); he was of the same stock and family, from which is descended the family of Castle Hill, as is sufficiently proved from the ancient protection granted on that account by the Kings of Scotland to that illustrious family, from the surname and armorial bearing, and as has been acknowledged by an Act of Parliament of Scotland in the year 1687. The Picts, a nation in the neighborhood of the Northumbrians and who inhabited the south of Scotland, were, as yet, at that period (670) for the most part Pagans, and always at war with the Albanicks, who inhabited the west hills of Scotland, the latter had then embraced Christianity for some time. Alfred, a man of letters, as well as zealous for the propagation of the belief and law, wherein he had been newly instructed, and truly animated with its spirit of charity, laid himself out ardently in procuring and cementing peace between these two nations, his neighbors, and the more that he had conceived a particular esteem for the king of the Albanicks, Eugene the Fifth, his contemporary, who was likewise a man of letters and a Christian. Alfred gave commission to the Bishop of Lindisfarne, his subject, and the Institutor of Christianity, to negotiate this peace between them; he hoped thereby to see the religion, which he had newly embraced himself, more easily established among the Picts, as appears from the History of Scotland by Buchanan and others. The Holy Bishop laid himself out with the greatest wisdom and impartiality, to bring about this, and succeeded; he brought the natives to agree that they should never hereafter attack each other with their whole forces, and that the King of the Picts should give his daughter in marriage to the King of the Albanick's eldest son, which was accordingly executed. By this alliance it happened that soon thereafter the rights of the Crown of the Albanicks, and the Picts, were united together in the person of Eugene the Eleventh, and the King of the Albinicks descended from this marriage; although these rights were not made effectual until King Kenneth's time in the year 854, however, the Albinicks, and the Picts, became afterwards one and the same nation, and were known by the name of Scots, as appears from all Scottish Historians. But Alfred, while he charitably procured peace between the nations his neighbors, he could not cover himself from the revolutions to which all crowns were more particularly subjected in those times of ignorance, and confusion, he was chased out of his kingdom and obliged to take refuge with the King of the Picts, and by the death of the Bishop of Lindisfarne, the kindred of this worthy prelate were obliged to quit his native country and to seek refuge abroad. Abercromby, a modern Scotch historian, says this Bishop in aftertimes was honored as a saint; he left his family to go to preach the Gospel to the Northumbrians.

Bede, a contemporary with the Bishop, imagines him to be of the country of the Northumbrians; the Bishop's kindred, who were distinguished in those ancient times by no other name than that of George, which one of the family had received in baptism, or on his embracing Christianity, he came to ask protection and refuge from the King of the Albinicks, whose residence was frequently at Inverness, who was full of gratitude for peace which the Bishop of Lindisfarne had negotiated with so much dexterity and uprightness, betwixt his grandfather and the King of the Picts, received them with kindness, until such time as he could give them employment in his service or otherwise provide for them. These marks of his royal goodness, though not yet accompanied with a solid establishment having acquired to them the highest consideration in the town of Inverness, they did from that time fix their abode there in order to be near to offer their service, and show their attachment to the King. They had the good fortune to distinguish themselves in those early times in the troops which the town of Inverness was bound to send to the field for the King's service; as a recompense for their valor and signalized exploits in that station he obtained them, together with the freedom of the Burghesses, the rights of the lands of Droogie, or Drakies in Vassalage, or feu holding thereof which they still possess. Their influence in the King's Court, and in the town of Inverness, engaged thereafter, the Baron of Dacies in the neighborhood to give them in vassalage the lands of Muckovy to be held of him which they likewise still possess. It was not till long thereafter that they obtained from the King in recompense of their constant and distinguished services, the lands that compose the Barony of Castle Hill, which they got as a royal holding, or feu, with a fortified castle, under the burthen of, or subject to military service. These events which regard their first settlement of Inverness are presumed from the proofs of the high antiquity of this family, to have happened about the year 950, a short time after King Kenneth, by his birthright, as well as conquest, had united the Kingdom of the Picts to that of the Albinicks. Such is the tradition of the family of Castle Hill, about the origin of its first illustration, and its settlement in Scotland; the principle of facts which are set down by the best historians, such as Bede, Fordam, Bore, Buchanan, etc. The dates of the first concessions of the lands of the Drakies, and Muckovy, as well as of the lands of Castle Hill, are now unknown, the primitive titles having been destroyed during the invasion of Scotland by King Edward the First of England, and in the wars of the great families in the country among themselves. The use of the Public Registrar in order to supply copies of this kind was introduced in very late ages. This royal feu in all the charters, both ancient and modern, is designed "Auld," otherwise Old Castle Hill, the castle upon it was most probably the ancient habitation of the Kings of the Albinicks at Inverness; but since the union of the Kingdoms of the Albinicks and Picts, King Duncan, as it is said, caused to be built a new castle, on a rising ground in the middle of the town, which commands it, and it is likewise called Castle Hill, but it is in ruins now; it had been repaired and fortified about the year 1730, but Prince Charles Edward (Pretender's son), in the year 1746, blew up the castle with the fortifications. This illustrious family in possession through a great many ages of the lands of Castle Hill, as likewise of that of Muckovy, holding of the Baron of Dacies, and of the lands of Drakies, holding of the town of Inverness, near which is their residence, was known and distinguished in those ancient times, and in the newest or earliest of Christianity in that country only by the usual name of baptism of the head of the family, which was George, upon that account the head of this family, like the chieftains of other illustrious families in the Highlands of Scotland who have their particular patronymic baptismal name, continues always to be known and distinguished in the Highland Scottish language which is still at this day vulgar in all the country of Inverness, where the Barony of Castle Hill is situated, by the patronymic surname of McGeorge, without any other denomination, such surnames being the only ones used in the Highlands till the eleventh century, patronymic surnames as they were first given, so they were commonly the most durable in the great Highland families; others given on account of some quality of the mind, of the heart, or of the body, as well as those drawn from their place of residence, were more subject of being altered as being personal. The family of Castle Hill has surnames of all these different kinds, excepting from the qualities of the body, and it is the ancient possession and transmission of the different surnames according to the different ages wherein they shone and distinguished themselves, wherein the natural customs likewise underwent changes, and it was usual to get surnames of these different kinds that constitute the surest proof of their illustrious existence having been distinguished by the invasion of Edward the First, and in the intestine wars of the kingdom, which it may be said is the case with most of the other illustrious Highland families, it was relatively to the primitive illustration of this family at the same time of the introduction of armorial bearings amongst the gentry of Europe, they took for theirs, "a Quevie in pate."

azure, armes gules in a field Or, as being the most expressive symbol of their wisdom and uprightness, in the negotiation of the peace which acquired to them in their first and great illustration, they took for crest a naked hand, holding a branch of olive, and for motto "Perit and Recte." In consequence of this same illustration, and of the above armorial bearing, when surnames other than patronymic were introduced, and became fixed in the 12th century, this family got in the Highland Scottish language, the vulgar name about Inverness where they had long before settled, the surnames of Qubert or Quibert, besides that of McGeorge, which the chief carried over since the family became Christians, insomuch that at this very day all the descendants of this family are not called otherwise than Quivert in the Highland or Erse language, either from the corruption of the word Quevre, which in heraldry signifies "Serpent," which they had taken for their armes, or from the word Con, which in the Erse signifies word wisdom, which signifies holy, virtuous, and Bart or Vart, which signifies rich, that is to say rich or holy wisdom, to perpetuate the remembrance and tradition of their origin and settlement. It was after the union of the Highlands and Albanick nation, and the Picts under the same king, and under the common name of Scots, and after the Picts language had prevailed over the Albanick, and became the language of the court, and the assembly of the States and of the Parliament, that this family got in the Picts language the surname of Cuthbert or Cudbert, which as Camden explain in his work called Brittanicus, or the Antiquities of Britain (wrote about the year 1600, under Queen Elizabeth) signifies illustrious for skill and happens equally as Quibert, in the Erse language, to be relative to the primitive of Castle Hill, and to the armorial bearing, was granted to them to perpetuate the erudition, therefore, the word "Cuth" signifies "Skill," and "Bert" illustrious, which name the Bishop of Lindisfarne got in the same language, probably on that account. In those distant times, it was very common to translate surnames from one language into another, and even more recently, especially when they were significant, and the languages original, otherwise when no surname, any had signification, or when it was not attended to by the vulgar, as is often the case, people did commonly add, or cut off a letter at the end of a name, transfer or substitute one letter for another in the middle, as in Stuart, Douglas, Sinclair, etc., without going further, in Cuthbert itself given to this family in the Pictish language, for although it was there significant, or relative to the first illustration, and written according to the etymology, yet it ever was in speaking the public languages pronounced at Inverness Cobbert, because of the difficulty and harshness which the natives of that town find in articulating the different consonants that compose it, and the natives of Edinburgh, for the like reason, as likewise the French who anciently resorted thither, softened it yet more, and pronounced it as if written Colbert or Cubbert, which the armorial bearing of the family (in Latin, Coluber) led them yet more easily to do, especially about the beginning of the 13th century, when Armes became fixed, and the Latin was universally familiar over Europe, hence it happened that the descendants of this family, that are anciently settled about Edinburgh and Tranent, as well as those of them that went over to France, have allowed their names to be written according to this last pronunciation, and continue still to do so, which the ancestors of their respective branches were at first in all probability, led to do, from their not knowing in those times either to read or write, though of illustrious extraction. From these various circumstances it has happened that the Sto itself of the family, though constantly designed in all their charters by the Pictish denomination of "Cuthbert" only, has ever continued to be known and called in the vulgar pronunciation by several different surnames, above mentioned, which do always vary; to this day the language and idiom which at the same time these different denominations, have never ceased to be looked on as synonymous, and the same as equally and only belonging to this family, and have been acknowledged and declared such by an act of Parliament of Scotland in the year 1607, asserting the descent of John Baptist Colbert, Marquis of Seignelay, from this illustrious family, by Edward Colbert, son thereof, who went to France with Mary Lindsay of Edzet (or Edget) his spouse, about the year 1200, accompanying Christina de Baliol, niece of King Alexander the Third, when this princess went there to marry Eugert de Guines, Lord of Courcy, when having lived there some time and left issue the said Edward died at Rheims and was buried there. This identity of the various surnames had been likewise certified by the present Magistrates, 4th of November, 1769, in favor of Lachlan Alexander and Seignelay Colbert, called in the Albanic or Erse Language "Cuthbert." All the younger children of this illustrious family immediately descended from the Barons of Castlehill, and now settled there several years in France. The Barony of Castle Hill is contiguous to the town of Inverness insomuch that some houses built upon its demesnes, do form a suburb of the town, where the Baron of Castle Hill had his bailie to administer justice. This barony is bounded on the north by the town of Inverness, and the sea, and extends with Drakies and Muckovy, the other lands of the family, to the east and south as far as the lands of the Earl of Murray, on the River of Nairn, and to the Estate of Culloden, famous for the battle fought there in the year 1746. The family of the "Cuthberts" while possessed from male to male of the lands of Drakies, and Muckovy, and Castle Hill from remote ages, did at the same time fill the most distinguished offices in the State, such as that of High Sheriffs of the Counties of Inverness and Ross, whereof they did always acquit themselves with honor, and the strictest faithfulness, as likewise of the trust of Knight of the Shire, they had likewise been founders of a chapel in Inverness, which they dedicated to Saint Cuthbert, but was destroyed at the introduction of Calvinism, the family has always preserved its right of burying in the ground whereon the chapel was built, the foundation of this church appears by the family, from Dr. George McKenzie on the life of Saint Cuthbert, Vol. I, page 367. It was in consideration of the great valor and high exploits which the head of this family showed at the Battle of Harlaw in the year 1411 in support of James the Second, against McDonald, Lord of the Isles, whose standard he took at the battle, when as Chief Vassal of the town of Inverness by his lands of Draky, he led into the field the troops of that town, the King then granted to George Cuthbert, chief of the name, as a recompense for this signalized service, and a particular mark of distinction, "a fess gules in a field d'or," additional to the "quevre azure," the former armorial bearing of the family, which they afterwards bore in chief, and that this Prince ordered him to take for a crest a hand in a gauntlet holding an arrow, and for motto, "Nec minus fortiter" (or ininus). There is likewise added to the above achievement, two wild horses for supporters, whereof the vouchers are in the archives of the College of Heralds in Scotland. The family of the Cuthberts after the destruction of their more ancient charters by the English under Edward the First, and afterwards by other accidents, was in the habit, as other families in that county of making a resignation of their fees into the hands of the King, and of their other superiors in order to obtain new charters, confirmative of their possessions, but their ancient charters, even of this King, particularly of their lands of Drakies and Muckovy whereof no public records were made as holding only a particular superiors more lately taken from them or destroyed during the hostilities betwixt the great families of the country, but chiefly by the McDonalds, when the Lord of the Isles rose in arms to maintain the right of the country of Ross. This lord treated in the same manner the town of Inverness, and the most of the great families, about it, by destroying their charters, registers, writings, and by laying waste all the country. The reformers of religion some time thereafter destroyed with the churches all the church writings that could any way have supplied losses, so that the most ancient charter that this family now possesses are that of the lands of Auld Castle Hill, granted to William Cuthbert by King James the Third in the year 1478, and that of Queen Mary for the same lands in the year 1548, granted to George Cuthbert, nephew and heir apparent of John Cuthbert of Auld Castle Hill and to his heirs male, they have likewise other titles at different periods after these charters, and since the erection of the Barony of King James the Sixth, which consists chiefly in a charter of confirmation from King Charles the First, dated the 1st of August, 1625, and in consecutive instruments of the said Lands, the head of the family of Castle Hill so anciently proprietor of this estate, of that of Drakies or Dreggie, and of that of Muckovy, though by the nature of his fee of Castle Hill he held immediately of the crown, was nevertheless not created Baron of the States of the Kingdom, till James the Sixth conferred that honor on him, and his heirs male, or assignees bearing the name and arms of Cuthbert, as appears from the charter of creation, which is dated on the 19th of August, 1592, vesting him with that quality, and with all sorts of jurisdiction thereto belonging, with the rights likewise of sitting on the assembly of the States of the Kingdom, wherein as well as in the Parliament, the destination of the House of Lords and House of Commons never existed, as in the Parliament of England, and now in that of Great Britain, and things always remained on that footing in Scotland until the union of the Parliaments of both Kingdoms in the year 1707, under the reign of Queen Anne, of which late charters and seizins that have escaped destruction, beginning of that granted in the year 1478 to William, son of John, the grandson of George, who distinguished himself at the Battle of Harlaw.

Alexander Cuthbert, hereafter mentioned, has presented, with the preceding memorial in an uninterrupted series authentic copies of the Lord Lyon, in order to prove as far back as evidence of this kind (on account of the above unfortunate circumstances) can be traced, the ancient and illustrious existence of the family of Castle Hill, and to obtain from his lordship a certificate thereof in the legal and due form, also a testimonial of the destruction of the more ancient writings of the family from the above mentioned circumstances, and likewise a certificate of armorial bearings of the said family as is recorded in the Lyon office, and of the various synonymous appellations of the surnames thereof in this Kingdom, so as to ascertain and make known beyond all doubt, the illustrious extraction and descent of the male children and grandchildren of the late John Cuthbert, Baron of Castle Hill, and of the late Jane Hay Heiress Dalkerthy, his spouse, of the late George, their eldest son, Baron of Castle Hill, who espoused Mary McIntosh of Holm, and left by her four sons, viz.: James settled in Georgia, in North America; Seignelay in France; Lewis and George in Jamaica; Lachland, their second son (who espoused Mary Margaret Harford of Sufton), and dies lately in France, where he was major-general, having by his said spouse a son named Alexander Roger, and a daughter, their third son Alexander who is naturalized in France, and commonly lived there, their fourth son James married and settled in Carolina; there was presented with the preceding memorial by the above mentioned Alexander, third lawful son of the said John Cuthbert, and of the said Jane Hay, his spouse, a copy duly authentic of the charter granted by King James the Third, dated 23d of July, 1478, of the lands of Auld Castle Hill, to William Cuthbert, son of John and grandson of

George, who distinguished himself at the Battle of Harlaw against the king's enemies, and obtained at that time a perpetual monumental thereof a "fess gules" addition to the quivre in pale, the ancient arm of his family, a copy likewise authentic of the charter, upon resignation of the said lands of Auld Castle Hill, the grandson of the above William, and in favor of his heirs male a copy also duly authentic of a charter under the great seal of the kingdom, uniting and erecting all the lands belonging to the family of Castle Hill, that were held of the King into a free Barony in favor of John Cuthbert, son and heir of the last mentioned George, and to his heirs male, or assignees, they bearing the name and arms of Cuthbert. This charter bears the date of the 19th of August, 1592, service and retour William Cuthbert, Baron of Castle Hill, as heir to his father, the last named John, dated 14th of July, 1624, an authentic copy of a charter confirmation, under the great seal of Charles the First, dated the 1st of August, 1625, in favor of John Cuthbert,* Baron of Castle Hill, in consequence of a charter of resignation from his father, the last mentioned Cuthbert, Baron of Castle Hill, as heir to his father, the last mentioned John, dated 1st of April, 1677, authentic extract of the seizins of John Cuthbert, Baron of Castle Hill, of his Barony granted to him by his father, the last mentioned George, dated the 20th of April, 1699; authentic extract of the seizins, of the life rent provision of Jane Hay of Dalkethy, spouse of the last mentioned John, dated May 11, 1700, disposition and trust by John Cuthbert, Baron of Castle Hill, to Jane Hay, his spouse, and in favor of his younger children therein named for securing patrimonies, dated November 6, 1731; authentic extracts of the seizins of George Cuthbert, Baron of Castlehill, dated 22d of December, 1725, upon a precept contained in his contract of marriage with Mary, his spouse, daughter of James McIntosh, of Holme, Esq., and lastly certificates of the baptism of the children of the last mentioned John and George, Barons of Castle Hill, with many other rights produced in process, all which prove the state and existence of their children and grandchildren as above set forth.

We, John Campbell Hook, of Bankeston, Esq., Lord Lyon, King of Arms, do hereby certify and make known the facts mentioned in the above memorial, presented to us relating to the ancient, illustrious, armorial bearing, and surname of the said illustrious family of Castle Hill, conformable to the general history of this Kingdom to vouchers lodged in the Lyon office, to public notes, writ that the illustrious extraction, and descent of the Honorable John Cuthbert, late Baron of Castle Hill, and of the Honorable Jane Hay of Dalkeithy, his spouse, and their descendants, as above vouchers and rights to us presented, that illustrious existence of the said family of Castle Hill, any higher than the above battle, proceeding truly as is the case of many other ancient and illustrious families of this Kingdom from the general destruction of ancient monuments and writings at the time of the invasion of this Kingdom by King Edward First of England, from the devastation afterwards in the country of Inverness by McDonald, Lord of the Isles, from the more late destruction of ancient monuments at the time of the Reformation, and from the long want of public registers for charters and seizins of this Kingdom, that the armorial bearing as above described, and supported on account of the erection of Castle Hill into a Barony, and long usage as are allowed and recorded, in the public registers of the Lyon office, that the variation of the surname of the said family, according to the variation of the language and idiom as above set down is no less public by known Kingdoms than already solemnly acknowledged, and certified by an act of the second session of the first Parliament of the late King James the Eleventh, and that George Cuthbert of Castle Hill (son of John Browne of Castle Hill, and his spouse, or daughter of Cuthbert of Drakies, the last mentioned John's father was married to Magdalene, daughter of Sir James Frazer of Brea (third son of Simon the seventh Lord Lovat) and Barbara his spouse, daughter of David Wyms Fingask, a younger son of the family of the East of Wyms, and that William Hay of Dalkethy, Bishop of Murray, the above Jane Hay lawfully descended in the direct male line from the family of the Earl of Errol, who are hereditary Lord High Constables of Scotland, and by his mother, Dorothea Bruce of Pitharty (?) from the ancient Islands of "Anunadel" (or Arrunnadel) and Carrick, was married to Mary, the daughter of Robert Wyms, Baron of Castle Hill, a lad of the family of Wyms, and of his spouse Mary Sharpe, a daughter of the Baron of Houston, all of them ancient and illustrious families of this Kingdom.

In testimony thereof these presents are subscribed by Robert Boswell, Esquire, Deputy, and our seal office is appended hereunto at Edinburg, the first day of August, 1771.

This copy was taken from one in the possession of the Honorable James Cuthbert, one of the Council of Quebec, who says that though our arms are not alike, yet one as properly belongs to him as another, he being of the family of Castle Hill, and we are that of the Drakies.

JOHN CUTHBERT,
of Cork.

LONDON, GLOUCESTER PLACE, August 25, 1803.

MY DEAR SIR:

I met some weeks ago in this town a gentleman from America, whose name is M. Wright. He spoke of South Carolina and Charlestown and also of several of the inhabitants of that country. I asked him if he had any knowledge of a family of the name of Cuthbert. He told me he was perfectly acquainted with some gentlemen of that name both in Carolina and in Georgia, but more particularly with Major Cuthbert, and offered politely any services he could render me with my Relations in that part of the world. I begg'd of him to be so good as to be the bearer of a letter from me to Major Cuthbert, which he willingly promised he would.

You and I, Sir, are very nearly connected, we are descended from the same blood, and altho' we have not yet had any personal knowledge of one another, I presumed, however, that a grandson of the family of Castle Hill would not receive with indifference a call from a son of that family. Sir, the Cuthberts of Castle Hill have occupied that Barony in the shire of Inverness, in North Britain during a great many centuries and constantly appeared as worthy and honorable gentlemen, well connected and ally'd to the best families in the Kingdom. I omit here a long succession of ancestors and shall mention our line since John of Castle Hill, your and my grandfather. He had male issue four sons, viz. George, Lachlan, Alexander and James, all born of Jane Hay, only daughter of to the Right Revd. H. Hay, Episcopal Bishop of Murray in Scotland. George, the eldest of the four sons, succeeded his Father in the Lands and Estate of Castle Hill and died in the year 1748. Lachlan and Alexr., the 2d and 3d sons, went to France and died, the eldest in 1770, a general officer in the French King's service, the younger a minister of the Gallican church wherein he possessed several good livings. He died in 1782. The two sons of J. Cuthbert of Castle Hill were invited over to France by the family of Colbert, which were the offspring of the famous Maj. Colbert, Minister to Lewis XIV and one of the greatest men that ever appeared under any reign. He traced his origin up the Cuthberts of Castle Hill; several monuments in France seem to ascertain the truth of this descendance. In Scotland it has been attested by a family tradition, by the identity of the arms bearing of both the Scotch and the French families. By the resemblance also of the two names, and finally by an act of the Scotch Parliament in the reign of King James the 2d of England, and 7th of Scotland, from whence a long genealogy was sent to the Colberts of France; the act of Parlt. is to be seen in the Register's office at Edinburgh. The fourth of John of Castle Hill's sons was James Cuthbert, who went to South Carolina where he resided first in Edisto, I believe, and next in an island called Beaufort; was twice married and, I heard, has had a numerous family, of which M. Wright tells me, Sir, that you are a distinguished member. George, the eldest son of John of Castle Hill, and who succeeded his father in the Scotch Estate, married Mary MacIntosh, of a good family of that name, and left by her a numerous issue, both sons and daughters. His eldest son, John, was next married; he died in the field of honor, having been slain at the landing and siege of Louisbourg, where he was distinguished as a most promising officer by the great General Wolf. The next to John was James, who went to Carolina and fix'd in Georgia. His offspring is the eldest and first branch of the family of Castle Hill. George of Castle Hill's third son is Seignelay, who in his early years was called to France by his uncles, entered into the Ecclesiastical state, was for several years Grand Vicar of Toulouse, from whence he was prefer'd in 1781 to the Bishoprick of Rodez, one of the first sees in that Kingdom among the Bishopricks. He enjoyed this high station until the year 1792, when the French Revolution dispersed the Gallican Church and banished from the Kingdom every Bishop who refused to perjure themselves by dishonourable and disgraceful oaths; Seignelay Cuthbert, Bishop of Rodez, has remained steady to his principles of loyalty and of religion and was on this account involved with many others in the general Proscription. He sought shelter in England and an asylum in his brother's house, Lewis's, the fourth son of George of Castle Hill. It is from Lewis's house and since his death, which happened on the 29th day of October, 1802, that I, Seignelay B., of Rodez, write to you, Sir, in order to give you a more adequate knowledge of the present state of your relatives in the various parts of the globe, than you probably can obtain from any other quarter. Lewis Cuthbert went early to the Island of Jamaica, where after a various fortune he died much and justly lamented. The fifth son of George of Castle Hill was Lachlan, a young very promising officer in the British Artillery. He went out of the School of Woolish to be employed in the British army at the siege of Belle-Isle on the coast of Brittany. The landing of the troops was difficult and very hazardous. Young Cuthbert with two pieces of cannon he commanded, was one of the first that took ground; he was so active, spirited and useful in protecting the rest, that he was mentioned in the general orders and publickly thanked for his gallant behaviour. He was then in the 16th year of his age. This brave youth did not enjoy during a great number of years the honor he had acquired; he died in his 21st year, of a lingering distemper in France, where he came in the hopes of recovering his health. The last son of the same family was George, a posthumous child and born two months after his Father's death. When he had received his first education he went over to Jamaica, where he became a highly distinguished character, in the office of Provost-Marshal-General of the Island of Jamaica. Such has been the lot of my Father's and your uncle's Family.

George of Castle Hill died, leaving his estate very much incumbered and his children in very distressed circumstances. Nor were there any probable hopes of keeping the ancient inheritance in the family, if Alex. Cuthbert, our uncle, known under the name of Abbé Colbert, had not interfered and rescued a part of the Paternal property from the creditor's hands. But this good man died and no will was found among his papers, nor dispositions of his known. He left debts and the Castle Hill Estate, which he had rescued by arrangements with the creditors, continued to be the object of a great number of demands. In these circumstances, George Cuthbert, his father's youngest son, then in Jamaica, came forth and by acquiring with money, from those that had preferable claims on the Abbe's succession, their right in his landed property in Scotland, became the proprietor of the Castle Hill Estate. But he was hardly in possession of it, when he died in Jamaica, without issue. He left considerable debts and his Brother Lewis acquired from his succession the Castle Hill Estate and retained it until the day of his death. Lewis left a Will, in which he orders that his property in whatsoever it may consist, shall be equally divided between his five children, two sons and three daughters. This disposition and the actual impossibility in any one of the children to acquire the ancient inheritance of our ancestors, makes it of absolute necessity to put it in sale. M. Abraham Robbarts, left Executor of my Brother's will, has already taken every step, preliminary to this end; and I presume the Estate divided in six or seven lots will be disposed of in this manner about the month of November or December next. The lands of Castle Hill are "affirmed" about 900 L. But by new leases the income may "easily" be increased to 1,200 L. annual revenue, as the price of land in Scotland at present is very high, it is believed that the price of the lands of Castle Hill may amount to a sum equal to near forty thousand pounds. My brother Lewis has left debts to a considerable amount. He died in Jamaica, but his widow, a son and three daughters unmarried are in England. His eldest son is in Jamaica, where he thrives by his good conduct and industry, he has bought a considerable property in that Island, and I hope that this may turn out a very important and profitable acquisition. This is a sketch of what concerns George Cuthbert of Castle Hill and his descendants; I am his only remaining son. John was killed at the siege of Louisbourg; James died in Georgia, and has left issue of which I can give no account. Lewis and George died in Jamaica and Lachlan in France, where he had come for the recovery of his health. John, our Grandfather's second son Lachlan, who died at Calais a general officer in the King of France's service. He left a son, who is established and lives on his estate near that place. The third, or Abbé, died in 1782, and left no issue, nor a will in favor of any of his relations. I have mentioned the circumstances about his property in Scotland. The fourth son was Dr. James Cuthbert, your "Father" (I think L. C.), Sir, and my Uncle.

I wish you and all my relations in North America all happiness, health and prosperity; and I eagerly desire to know something more than I do about them. I shall acknowledge every favor you will bestow in that respect and beg you to mention the name of Bishop of Rodez to every one of his cousins and nephews and nieces when you shall see them.

I have written you this long letter, which I hope will appear to you worthy of some interest. If you answer me in the satisfactory manner I wish, I shall look upon myself as under real obligations to you, and I have the honour to remain, My dear Sir, your most humble servant and affectionate cousin,

SEIGNELAY CUTHBERT,
Bishop of Rodez.

My direction in London is Sommerset Street, Portman Square, No. 32, to be "recommended" to Mr. Groynn, London.

I have omitted in this account the female part of John of Castle Hill's descendants. The space of a letter would not allow me to add any new details.

(Signed)

SEIGNELAY CUTHBERT,
Bishop of Rodez.

TURPIN.

Arms: Gules, on a bend argent, three lions' heads erased, sable.

NOTE.—The old manner of spelling the name of this ancient family was Turpyne.

The progenitor of the Virginia branch of the Turpins was Richard Turpin, Esq., who was appointed a Herald by Henry VIII in 1564. He was descended from a family of Calais, France, and was at the siege of that city. He died on October 17, 1581. The first ancestor who went to America was Miles Turpin, who settled in Barbadoes.

The following is taken from the Church Register of St. Georges: "Miles, ye son of Miles Turpin, baptized April 6, 1678; Wm., ye son of Miles Turpin, bap. Sept. 15, 1679.

TALMAN.

Capt. Wm. Henry Talman, of ancient family, came to America 1750 in one of his own ships and landed at City Point, James River, Prince Georges County, Va. He married Ann Elizabeth Ballard. Their son, William Talman, married Elizabeth Hewlett, of New Kent County, and had among others a daughter, Hannah Talman, who married — Turpin, and their son, William Henry Turpin, married Miss d'Antignac, of the noble family of that name, whose ancestor went from France to America and fought in Revolutionary War.

BALLARD.

This old family entitled to bear arms descends from William Ballard and Elizabeth, his wife, who went to Virginia in the Ship Jamaica in May, 1635. The first of this ancient name of whom we read was William Ballard, Esq., son of Thomas Ballard and Miss Walch. He was a Herald time of Edward IV, but when Richard ascended the throne he was deposed, but later reinstated by Henry VII. The son of William Ballard and Elizabeth, above, was Hon. Thomas Ballard of the first council in Virginia, and his descendant, Elizabeth Ballard, married Capt. Wm. Henry Talman.

DU BOSE.

Isaac du Bose left France in 1685 with his wife and family, sailing from Dieppe, in Normandy, and landed in Charleston, South Carolina. From John, the eldest of the six sons, descended Isaac Du Bose, who married Sarah, daughter of his uncle, Peter Du Bose. Their daughter, Hannah Du Bose, married Charles Jean Louis Babtiste d'Antignac.

The memorial of the Chevalier d'Antignac will be found on a subsequent page, showing him to be of a noble family. His daughter married Wm. Henry Turpin, whose daughter, Julia Elizabeth Turpin, married James Hazzard Cuthbert, D. D.

The following arms are ascribed to the Du Bose family:

Bose du, en Normandie, D'hermine a trois fascés outré de gueles au Chevron d'or brochant se le tout.

BRUEN.

The ancient and honorable family of Bruen were related and connected to many of the gentle families of England and were descended for many generations from a family who in their own name, place, house and state occupied a position of standing. — Bruen, Esq., of Bruen Stapleford, married first a sister of Sir John Done of the house of Utkinton, but had no issue by her, when he married second the daughter of Thomas Holford, of Holford, Esq., and Miss Dutton, of Dutton, and had among others an elder son John Bruen, who was born in the county of Chester, and was then heir to the house of Bruen Stapleford. This gentleman was one of the most notable, worthy and pious men in his county and accomplished much good. "His house was none other than the house of God, and for religion he carried the topsail of all England," says the famous Mr. Perkins, and to this testimony may be added that of the Right Rev. Father in God the Lord Primate of all Ireland, who in speaking of Mr. Bruen says: "In his was the very beauty of Holiness, and he was of so amiable and cheerful a countenance that when I beheld him I was reminded of Moses, whose face shone, as honoring some more than ordinary eminency of grace of heart." In his life is exemplified the character of one to whom too much honor can not be paid and his descendants should revere and cherish this magnificent specimen of a Christian gentleman.

John Bruen, Esq., married first, 1580, the daughter of Mr. Hardware, who had been twice chosen Mayor of Chester. He married, second, Mrs. Anne Fox, whose father had filled the place of Comptroller to the Earl of Derby when Ambassador from the Queen of France, and her mother descended from the families of Adderton and Lelands, of Lancashire. Mr. Bruen again married, the third time, Margaret, and had a son and daughter. He was buried January 25, 1625.

From these marriages a number of children appear to have been born, of whom were Obediah and Mary, who appear among the New England Pilgrims. Obediah Bruen became a prominent man in the colony and was seven times Deputy to the General Court, Clerk of County Court from Gloucester, Clerk County Court Pequot Harbor, and one of the founders of Newark, N. J. We see that this prominent citizen was descended from the ancient and worthy family of Bruen, of Bruen Stapleford and from the Holfords, of Holford, and the Duttons of Dutton, and that the family were connected to the Hardwares of Peile and that it occupied one of the first positions of prominence and was one of the leading families of the country. Obadiah Bruen had among others John Bruen, great grandfather of Rev. Obadiah Bruen Brown, of Washington, grandfather of George Whitfield Brown.

Reference: Life of John Brown, Esq., by Samuel Hinde and by Rev. Wm. Hinde Fellow, of Queen's College, Oxford; Wm. Coddington, of Chester, and preface by A. M. Bruen.

BROWN.

George Whitfield Brown, Esq., a prominent citizen of Washington, D. C., is the son of William Van Horn Brown, Esq., and Adelaide Harrington, and grandson of the late Obadiah Bruen Brown, who was born in 1780, in Newark, N. J., of a family who early came to America. The Browns were descended from the ancient family of Bruen who were allied to many of the gentry of Great Britain such as Sir John Done, the Holfords, of Holford, the Hardwares, the Duttons, of Dutton, and others. Not only in England did this old manorial family stand high, but in America we find that Obadiah, son of the great John Bruen, early arrived as one of the New England Pilgrims and was first entered as a freeman of Plymouth Colony in 1640, and afterwards went to Gloucester, and before 1650 was chosen seven times Deputy to the General Court, one of the important and honorable offices in the colony. He removed to Pequoit Harbor, New London, and there was chosen townsman for fifteen years in succession, also Clerk or Recorder of the town, the whole time, and in 1661 upon the organization of the court was chosen clerk of that body. In the charter of Connecticut granted by Charles II, his name appears as one of the patentees of the colony, which is proof that he was considered its most prominent inhabitant. In 1667 he removed with his son John in company with an association of planters to the Passaic River, where he founded what is now known as the city of Newark, first called Milford. Thus we see that the Browns of Washington have a most honorable descent from the early settlers of America. Rev. Obadiah Bruen Brown married Mrs. Jackson, née Reilly.

To the Honorable the Delegates from the States of America in Congress assembled:

The Memorial of the Chevalier d'Antignac Humbly Sheweth:

That your Memorialist takes the liberty of offering his services for raising a regiment of light horse. No military person is ignorant of the utility of such troops, either for a coup de main, for obtaining intelligence or for surprising an enemy, in short an army unprovided of such troops must be exposed to many hazards and inconveniences.

The knowledge I have in this part of the service induces me to make the following proposal to the Hon'le Congress & if they will place so much confidence in me I flatter myself my conduct will be approved of. Should it be agreeable to the Hon. Congress to raise a regiment of light horse I will undertake to teach the men to ride, exercise & perform all the necessary evolutions in three months. Or should a regiment not be approved of at present I will undertake to do the same with a company of fifty men, flattering myself the Congress will honour me with the rank of Colonel.

I have had the honour of serving in the King of France's first company of Musketeers & it is well known that the King frequently grants regiments to those Musketeers who can afford the expence, as that corps consists of the first nobility, but my circumstances did not permit me to arrive at that honor, as supporting the rank of a Colonel in France is attended with a heavy expence, but he can supply what is requisite in this country.

It is not from an interested motive that your Memorialist is come into America but (sic) from a principle of honor & regard for liberty, therefore does not desire any pay till he has proved himself worthy the esteem of the Hon'le Congress, but will serve the campaign at his own expence, rank being all he is ambitious of.

All which is humbly submitted to the consideration of the Hon'le Congress.

CHAMBARON, D'ANTIGNAC.

(Endorsed.) October 16, 1776. The Memorial of the Chevalier d'Antignac. Read 16 Oct., 1776. Referred to the Board of war.

To the Honorable the President & others the Members of the Congress of the United States of America.

The Memorial of Lewis John Baptist Chambaron d'Antignac, most respectfully sheweth:

That your Memorialist having served eleven years in the corps of the First Troops of Musketeers, belonging to his most Christian Majesty's Household, presented to you his Vouchers in the month of October last, whereupon your Honorable House referred him to his Excellency General Washington.

That your Memorialist, having laboured during the whole winter, under a severe Fit of Sickness, joined the Northern Army after his recovery in the month of March last, that he received at Albany a Captain's commission from General Gates & immediately proceeded to Ticonderoga, where he continued till the retreat of the Northern Army, with which he lost his Baggage; and that he trusts the Officers who served there, will do him Justice, & particularly for his Conduct at Skeensborough.

That being sensible he could be more useful to the United States, where he employed in the Dragoons, which is the service in which he has been trained from his youth, he hopes the Losses he has sustained, & the Enormous Expence he has been at, since his arrival, without being entitled to any pay, will determine you to grant him his request & promote him to a Higher Rank.

And your Memorialist will ever pray.

CHAMBARON, D'ANTIGNAC.

GEORGIA CUTHBERTS.

There seems to have been quite a number of Cuthberts in Georgia, and as many of these people came from Inverness with the McIntosh's, they must have all belonged to the families of Drakies and of Castle Hill.

We find as early as 1740 a John Cuthbert in the Darien, Georgia, settlement, and also A. Daniel Cuthbert and Isaac Cuthbert, members of the District Congress of Darien, 1775, and in 1739 among those witnesses who signed the Creek Treaty ceding land to colony find John Cuthbert of Drakies and George Cuthbert of Inverness.

Also Captain John Cuthbert of Drakies who was a planter in Georgia and Captain of the Rangers, as also James Cuthbert, son of George Cuthbert, of Castle Hill, who married Mary McIntosh.

His sister Anne married first Hon. Patrick Graham, surgeon, President of the Colony of Georgia, who died, when she afterward married Hon. James Bulloch, his third or fourth wife. No issue appears to have been of this marriage unless Christiana Bulloch who married the Honorable Henry Yonge was of this union, and not of Stobo marriage, as was her brother, Hon. Archibald Bulloch.

We also find the Hon. Seth John Cuthbert, Secretary of the Council of Safety, Acting Governor of Georgia, and President pro tempore of the Executive Council and member of Provincial Congress.

He married Mary, daughter of Hon. Joseph Clay, and had two children:

- I. Alfred Cuthbert, U. S. Senator, married Sarah, daughter of Dr. George Jones, U. S. Senator, and had:
  - i. Alfred Cuthbert married Anna Davis.
- II. Hon. John Cuthbert, member of Congress, married Louisa Eugenia Croft.

NOTE.—The Civil Officers in Georgia were before the appointment of the Royal Governors Patrick Graham, President, James Habersham, Noble Jones, Pickering Robinson and Francis Harris, as Assistant Presidents. There were also members of the Council when a Royal Governor was appointed.

Mary Clay, daughter of Hon. Joseph Clay and Ann Le-gardiére, was married, February 14th, 1785, to Hon. Seth John Cuthbert, Secretary of the Council of Safety, member of the Provincial Congress, 1775, member of Executive Council and chosen President pro tem., Saturday, July 24th, 1779, of the Supreme Executive Council of Georgia.

There were two families of Cuthbert who went to Georgia—"Cuthbert of Drakies, Scotland," and Cuthbert of Castle Hill, near Inverness, and Hon. Seth John must have been one of these. Mary Clay and the Hon. Seth John Cuthbert had two sons:

- I. Alfred Cuthbert, married Sarah Jones.
- II. John A. Cuthbert, married Louisa Eugenia Croft, and had:
  1. Joseph Cuthbert.
  2. Mary Cuthbert.
  3. Robert Houstoun Cuthbert.

4. Harriet Georgia Cuthbert.
5. Eloise Cuthbert, m. Thomas Goulding.
6. Cornelia Margaret Cuthbert, married William H. Platt, and had :
  - I. Charles W. Platt.
  - II. Edward C. Platt, married Margaret Hunter, and had :
    1. Edward C. Platt.
    2. A. Hunter Platt.
    3. Edith H. Platt.
    4. Horace G. Platt.
  - III. Horace Garvin Platt.
  - IV. Ella Platt.
7. John Croft Cuthbert, married Ada Eugenia Davis, and had :
  - A. John A. Cuthbert.
  - B. Eloise Goulding Cuthbert.
  - C. William H. Platt Cuthbert.
  - D. Walter Douglas Cuthbert.
  - E. Lee Davis Cuthbert.
  - F. Mary Medora Cuthbert.
  - G. Kate Clay Cuthbert.
  - H. Zaidee Vivian Cuthbert.

John A. Cuthbert and Louisa Eugenia Croft had also :

8. Margaret Louisa Cuthbert.
9. Thomas Gaulding Cuthbert.
10. Joseph Stiles Cuthbert.
11. Anne Clark Cuthbert.
12. George Washington Cuthbert.
13. Eugenia Louisa Cuthbert.
14. Octavia Lydia Cuthbert.
15. Octavius Cuthbert.
16. Van Brugh Livingston Cuthbert.

Hon. Alfred Cuthbert, U. S. Senator, eldest son of Hon. Seth John Cuthbert and Mary Clay, married Sarah Jones, daughter of Dr. George Jones, U. S. Senator, who married Mary Gibbons, February 1st, 1783, daughter of the eminent patriot, Hon. William Gibbons, descended from an officer in Cromwell's army. Dr. George Jones was a son of Dr. Noble Wymberley Jones, one of the Morning Stars of Liberty, son of Hon. Noble Jones, of Lambeth County, Surrey, England, and Miss Wymberly. (?) Drakies plantation in Georgia was owned by George Cuthbert, 1797.

Hon. Wm. Gibbons was one of the foremost patriots of 1776. Dr. George Jones married, second, Mrs. Mary Gibbons; and third, Eliza Smith, and had George Wymberly Jones De Renne.

Alfred Cuthbert and Sarah Jones had one son, Alfred Cuthbert, who married Anna M. Davis and had:

1. Alfred Cuthbert, married Ella Shebbard.
2. Mary C. Cuthbert.

Alfred Cuthbert and Ella Shebbard had:

- A. Alfred Cuthbert.
- B. George Cuthbert.

CUTHBERT OF CASTLE HILL AND OF DRAKIES.

In a treaty with the Creek Indians, made in Georgia in 1739, and Gen. Oglethorpe, as witnesses occur among others: John Cuthbert of Drakies, and George Cuthbert of Inverness.

George Cuthbert, commander of the forces from Inverness in the battle of Harlaw, against Donald of the Isles, had John Cuthbert, 1478, who had William Cuthbert of 1458, who had John John Cuthbert of 1593, who had George Cuthbert, 1611, who had John Cuthbert, who had William Cuthbert, who married Janet McKenzie, and had: John Cuthbert, who married Mary, daughter of George Cuthbert, of Drakies, and had: George Cuthbert, who married Magdalen, daughter of Sir James Fraser, of Brae. From Cuthbert, of Castle Hill, descend a branch of Heyward, Guerard, Roach, Barnwell and others. A George Cuthbert owned Drakie's plantation, on Savannah River, in 1797. Now we see that John Cuthbert, of Drakies, and George Cuthbert, of Inverness, were in Georgia in 1739, and a John Cuthbert and a Seth John, members of Provincial Congress of 1775; so the Hon. Seth John Cuthbert of Georgia must descend from either John of Drakies or George of Inverness, or from Castle Hill. The Cuthberts of Castle Hill, in Georgia, represent the family, so says Rev. Seignelay Cuthbert, of Scotland.

THE CUTHBERTS OF BERTHIER.

No family in Canada has a more interesting history than that of the Cuthberts of Berthier.

The first of that name who came to Canada, James Cuthbert, was the great grandson of John Cuthbert, Baron of Castle Hill, in the language of the Lyon King of Arms, "chief of that ancient surname." His father was* John Cuthbert, of Inverness, and his mother Beatrice, the daughter of David Cuthbert, of Andresier.

These Cuthberts of Castlehill were descended from George Cuthbert, who in 1411 commanded the forces raised by the town of Inverness at the Battle of Harlaw against the rebellious Donald, Lord of the Isles, and whose standard George Cuthbert seized.

This bearer of the name of Cuthbert was the representative of an ancient Saxon family in the Kingdom of Northumberland. This territory at one time embraced not only the present county of this name, but also York, Lancaster, Durham, Cumberland, and Westmoreland,—the tract north of the Humber. It is asserted that the Cuthberts were the English relatives of the most famous saint of the North, the prior of the earlier Melrose and Bishop of Lindisfarne, St. Cuthbert, who died in 687, and whose bones at length found a resting place in Durham Cathedral. Anterior to this the family are said to have come from Tuteland.

The battle of Harlaw was one of the most obstinately contested in the early annals of Great Britain. The Earl of Mar commanded the Royal forces, and such was the carnage that Buchanan says there perished in this conflict more illustrious men than had fallen in foreign wars during many previous years. The ground was obstinately contested on both sides; neither was eventually victorious.

For the conspicuous valour shown by the Cuthberts in this engagement, to the serpent azure their shields displayed that day was then added a fesse gules as a perpetual monument to their honour. The fesse is now different, but the sliding azure serpent is still borne.

James Cuthbert served in early life in the navy. He was lieutenant in Admiral Vernon's flagship in 1740, at the siege of Carthage, and carried home the news of the taking of the forts.

He also transferred his sword to the sister service, and we find him in command of one of the independent companies at Inverness, the Highland watch. The town presented him with a piece of plate in recognition of special services.

James Cuthbert then served with that very gallant regiment which commenced to gather its laurels as the 43d, and has ever since continued the harvest under every sky as the 42—"the Forty-two."

We find him in 1758 with the 15th, or Amherst's regiment. England was at this time protecting her possessions in different parts of the globe, and carrying on an aggressive war on the French in Canada, and the 15th regiment was employed at Louisbourg. Here Cuthbert took part in the capture of the American Dunkirk.

The following year he served in the same regiment in the memorable campaign under Wolfe on the St. Lawrence, which terminated in the Battle of the Plains.

No one can read without emotion the notice of the sailing of the last ship of the fleet from the St. Lawrence for England—after the taking of Quebec. Wolfe's body was being borne to his resting-place among his kindred. Mont-calm's earthly remains were in the keeping of the Sisters of St. Ursula, in their picturesque chapel. They lay in a soldier's grave, made by a shell of his adversary. Murray and his little army were left in the midst of a strange land. Hundreds of miles of snow on every side separated them from the nearest friendly post. The brave and accomplished Levis, burning to retrieve the defeat of the Plains, was preparing to retake the city. He was a foe in every respect worthy of Murray's resources. He was at home, his forces accustomed to the climate, and he was kept advised of every movement the English made by friends in and around the walls of Quebec. Fortunately the greatest unanimity existed among the garrison. The spring found Levis besieging the city.

Anxious eyes were directed across the basin towards the island of Orleans. It was a question which fleet would arrive soonest. For had the French succor appeared first, with besiegers on the plains and a hostile armament in the river, Murray would have been placed in a trying position. That winter and spring he buried a thousand men of his garrison.

Captain Cuthbert was A.D.C. to the general, shared the anxiety of that first winter, and carried to England his despatches.

Quebec was relieved, Montreal capitulated, and Canada became a British dependency. Captain Cuthbert remained with General Murray during his stay in Canada.

Lieutenant-Governor Guy Carleton was appointed on the 24th September, 1766, and on the 28th November of that year we find Captain Cuthbert a member of the Legislative Council.

Captain Cuthbert had resolved to make Canada his home, and left the army.

On the 7th March, 1765, by notarial deed, executed at the city of Montreal, before Simonet and Panet, notaries, in the house of John Fraser, Esq., Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, the Honourable Captain Cuthbert acquired from Sieur Pierre Noël Courthiau Bourgeois, then resident at Bayonne, in France, represented by his brother, the seigniory of Berthier, a tract of land of about fifteen miles front by about twenty-one miles in depth, on the north shore of the river St. Lawrence, nearly opposite the mouth of the Richelieu.

This seigniory was principally held under two titles, one of the 27th August, 1674, from Count Frontenac to Captain Alexandre Berthier, and the other 31st December, 1732, from the Marquis de Beauharnois and Hoequart, intendent to Sieur Pierre l'Etage.

Captain Cuthbert paid a considerable sum for the property by draft on George Ross, Esq., of London, payable on the ratification by the absentee vendor of certain formalities connected with the sale.

Captain Berthier was a distinguished officer of the famous Carignan Salieres Regiment. He had seen service in Europe. His name, like that of many of his brother officers, is preserved in the counties of this province. He was born in 1638 in the diocese of Perigueuse, in France, and came to this country with his regiment. He was a Huguenot, but changed his religion for that of the Roman Catholic at Quebec in 1665 in the presence of Monseigneur de Laval, of de Tracy, de Courcelles and Talon.

After the regiment was disbanded he married, at Quebec, on the 11th October, 1672, Miss Marie Le Gardeur, daughter of Charles Le Gardeur de Tilly and Genevieve Juchereau. There were present at the wedding, among others, Pierre Saurel, Jacques de Chambly, Jean Juchereau de la Ferté and Nicholas Dupont. The first-named of these gentlemen was not only a brother officer, but a brother-in-law, having married Miss Catherine Le Gardeur. In the immediate future they were neighbours on the river St. Lawrence. Berthier was at this time thirty-four years of age and his bride twenty-one.

Less than three weeks after Captain Berthier's marriage he received another seigniory in the county of Bellechasse of two leagues square.

To any one acquainted with the old noblesse the above names recall many memories. Some of the connections are still known to us.

Captain Berthier was living in Canada in 1708. It is presumed he returned to France, as his burial is not recorded in this country. After certain mutations the seigniory passed into the hands of this Pierre Noël Courthiau.

On the 24th January, 1778, John Hooke Campbell, of Baugeston, Lyon King of Arms, at the request of Captain James Cuthbert, certified that the following Ensigns armorial were matriculated in the public registers of the Lyon office as belonging to him; "or, on a fess azure, three Frasers, Argent-in-Chief, a serpent gliding in Pale of the second, armed and langued Gules. Above the shield is placed an Helmet befitting his Degree, with a Mantling Gules, the doubling Argent. On a wreath of his liveries is set for Crest an armed dexter Arm issuing out of the Wreath in Pale, holding an Arrow, both Proper, and in an Escroll, above the crest is this motto—Fortiter"; and certified he was the eleventh in descent from the George Cuthbert who commanded the Inverness forces at Harlaw and had seized the standard of the Lord of the Isles, and that this George Cuthbert represented the ancient Saxon Northumbrian family.

Captain Cuthbert settled on his seigniory, and began to instil among the new subjects of His Majesty sentiments of loyalty and attachment to the crown of England.

The minds of the French Canadians were disturbed by the different views advanced for their government, which assumed a definite shape in the Quebec Act. The American Revolution quickly followed. The revolted colonies made direct overtures to the Canadians to join them, and much anxiety was experienced by the Government.

On the invasion of the Province by the Americans, Berthier and its neighbourhood became the theatre, not only of differences in political sentiments, but of military operations.

Here not only was the judgment and firmness of Captain Cuthbert of great value in suppressing insurrectionary movements, but his military experience was again called into requisition. The Americans were in possession of Sorel. They proposed to surprise and capture seven heavily laden ordnance transports which were in the river. Cuthbert visited their camp and acquired information of this intention. He thereupon crossed during the night in a bark canoe, with muffled paddles, to the headquarters of General Simon Frazer at Three Rivers, informed him of the enemy's design, and, on his advice, the British advance post at Point du Lac was reinforced and the transports ordered to fall down the river to Cap Madelaine. They were thus saved.

A masked battery was also erected on the shore at Point du Lac, by means of which the American flotilla, conveying their army at night from the River Nicolet, where they had secretly collected, was so warmly received on nearing the shore that they were entirely defeated and their boats destroyed.

The American General at Sorel being informed of this service of Captain Cuthbert, sent a detachment of troops to Berthier, seized the person of the seigneur, burnt the Manor House, took possession of his mills, and destroyed property to the value of several thousand pounds. Cuthbert was sent a prisoner in irons to Albany.

The British Government never indemnified the family for this loss.

While himself a devoted member of the Reformed Church, he appears to have left to his sons rather the choice of their religious belief than to have expected them necessarily to have followed his. He sent them to be educated at the Roman Catholic college at Donai, in Flanders. It is unnecessary to recall the fact that many of the Highland families were Roman Catholics.

To Captain Cuthbert belongs the honour of having built the first Protestant place of worship in New France, and the first bell whose notes echoed through the forests of this province calling its hearers to a service according to the faith of the Reformers, was in the belfry of this church.

It was primarily intended for and principally used as a family chapel.

Most appropriately the gallant Highlander, whose ancestors had fought on so many Scottish battle fields, dedicated this church to the patron saint of his native land, and the first Protestant Church in Canada received the name of the apostle who first followed his Lord and Master, St. Andrew. The services were at first conducted in the Presbyterian form by a Scotch clergyman, who was a member of Captain Cuthbert's family, and was tutor to his children. A few years later the Anglican clergyman at Sorel would come over, and officiated for the family of the seigneur and such other Protestants as were then to be found at Berthier.

It is not easy at this distance of time to say when the services were discontinued in St. Andrew's Church, but in all probability it was shortly after the erection of the first church in Sorel.

This interesting building, of which an illustration appeared a short time since in this publication, is built of rough stone, and is situated about half a mile from the River St. Lawrence and from the first manor house of the English seigneur of Berthier. It is about thirty-eight feet in length and twenty-five feet in width. The walls are two feet thick. A spacious belfry, for the size of the church, surmounted it. Its diameter was about a third of the length of the building; it had eight openings, and terminated in an octagonal spire, very little exceeding in height the belfry. The whole of this addition to the chapel was about the height of the gable wall. The present belfry and steeple are substitutes for the original ones, which perished with time.

In the middle of the wall of the opposite end was a very tastefully and neatly executed pulpit, surmounted by a covering or canopy, and ascended by a straight staircase. There were no pews. The members of the family and other worshippers of position occupied the floor of the chapel in front of the pulpit, seated on chairs. An elevated gallery, about ten feet wide, at the other end, was devoted to the servants. There were no permanent stairs to ascend, a movable set of steps being used. The family burial place was under this gallery, the interments being made with the heads of the deceased to the wall of the church. There was no vault, properly speaking, the whole structure served as such also.

The last seigneur informed me that it is not definitely known who have here found their last earthly resting place nor the precise locality of interment. Besides the Cuthberts, there are some members of the Antrobus family here interred. On the wall is a tasteful, and dignified for that time, monument to Alexander Cuthbert, son of Captain Cuthbert, who died on the 9th January, 1810, aged 42 years. The material of this memorial is wood, the inscription on an oval, under a kind of pediment, and below is a text on a piece of drapery. The whole is five feet by one foot ten inches.*

The church is a touching memorial of a bereaved husband to the virtues of a faithful wife, who was removed at the early age of 40, after a married life of nineteen years, and having borne him three sons and seven daughters. This is gracefully recorded on a marble tablet, nearly three feet in length, framed in stone, and inserted over the door on the opposite side to that by which entrance is now made to the church. This door is circular at the top, and taken in connection with the dedicatory tablet, was evidently at the erection of the building the principal entrance. It is now permanently closed.

Mrs. Cuthbert was a Miss Catharine Cairns.

The inscription on this tablet, which is to be found at full length in our issue of 21st February last, records the fact that the chapel was the first erected in the province since the conquest, and recites the manors held by Captain Cuthbert. Besides these he held the fief d'Orvilliers. This was in the year 1786, and that following the death of his devoted wife.

The bereaved husband was in course of time laid to rest with his wife and daughter, Caroline, in this memorial chapel. Besides the Antrobuses and Alexander Cuthbert, whom we have noticed, are here interred James, Captain Cuthbert's nephew, of about the same age, the only son of the Hon. Ross Cuthbert—his monument is handsome—Georgina, daughter of Major Ferneret, two daughters of the late seigneur Edouard Octavian Cuthbert, and others of the family and connections.

The chapel has been thus used to hold the ashes of the Cuthberts to the present generation. There are three small windows on each side of the building, which contained the usual old-fashioned small panes of glass, six inches by seven. The second Honourable James Cuthbert, son of the builder of the chapel, removed the frames of the windows and closed them with the shutters now seen to prevent evil intentioned persons from desecrating the building. He was a member of the Roman Catholic communion, and presented the bell of St. Andrew's Church to that of Isle du Pas, opposite Berthier, where it is still used by our fellow-countrymen of his faith. The bell bears no inscription.

Captain Cuthbert was a model of a lord of the manor. He was a man of great force of character. In his days the lines between gentle and humble birth were more clearly drawn than at present, and the Seigneur of Berthier was not one to permit any trespassing on the privileges attached to his position, be the aggressor cleric or lay.

He revered religion for its own sake, and knew its value. He was the father of his vassals, who were almost exclusively of the Roman Catholic faith. No reasonable assistance in connection with their communion was ever refused them. He gladly contributed building material for their churches and parsonages. The parish of St. Cuthbert, seven-and-a-half miles from Berthier, received its name from the seigneur. It seems to have been specially under his care and that of his devoted wife. He presented the church with a large oil painting of its patron saint, in his episcopal robes, mitred and with crosier in his hand. In the corner was the donor's arms. To perpetuate Mrs. Cuthbert's interest in this church and the welfare of its members, in 1783 Captain Cuthbert imported from London a bell for this church. The following legend was cast in the metal:

"Sit nomen Domini benedictum. Je m'appelle Catharine jepese—et j'ai été donné a l'Eglise de St. Cuthbert en Canada, par l'honorable Jacques Cuthbert, Ecuier, Seigneur du lieu Anno Domini, 1783. Chapman & Mears of London, fecerunt, 1783."

The height of this bell is two feet seven inches and its diameter about the same. What more touching or closer connection could be established between members of the same great Christian family.

Thus lived and died James Cuthbert. His house was famed for hospitality. He was of as noble birth as any of the ancient French noblesse who crossed swords with him on the Plains of Abraham and were afterwards his neighbours and fellow-labourers in transplanting to and developing within New France the British constitution. While he was firm to his principles and church, he was conspicuous for that wise toleration of and respect for the views of others, which must be the guiding principles of all who wish for the welfare of this province.

Captain James Cuthbert by his wife Catharine Cairns had three surviving sons and six daughters. The eldest, Alexander, married but died without issue. We have referred to his monument in St. Andrew's Church. The second was James, the third, Ross Cuthbert.

Before touching on the careers of these two sons, let us glance at the hymeneal futures of the daughters. Descended from a military race, five of these ladies married officers, and what is more remarkable still, four of them to brother officers in the 60th Regiment,—the old famous Royal Americans whose most honourable record, commenced on this continent, has been extended with credit to the corps and glory to the nation in every part of the world. The husbands of these ladies were Captain Clark, Colonel Romer, Colonel Robertson, Captain Nickson. Catherine married Mr. John Antrobus; the fifth of the daughters who elected a son of Mars was the wife of Major Ferneret.

James Cuthbert, second seigneur, was born in 1767. He received as his share of his father's landed property, Berthier, Maskinonge and New York, Ross Cuthbert taking d'Au-try and d'Orvilliers. James Cuthbert was a worthy representative of his father and his name throughout his long career. At the death of Hon. Captain Cuthbert he held a commission as Lieutenant in the second battalion of the Royal American Regiment, but having been appointed his father's executor and being in charge of his estates, and, in addition, having the charge of his sisters, his military and domestic duties clashed. Called to London on estate business, and being unable to obtain leave of absence from General Prescott, no course lay open but to resign his commission. This he accordingly did.

James Cuthbert even then, from his territorial connection, commanded the militia. It appears that up to 1804 the French Canadian corps still wore the French uniform, while their fellow-citizen-soldiers of English origin were habited in the British colours. It is obvious that the effect of such distinction would be to keep the races apart by fostering uncalled for memories of a past regime, when the interest of the country lay in forgetting such and forming a united body under the new flag. Sir Robert Shore Milnes, the Lieutenant Governor in 1804, saw the evil results thus created and perpetuated and expressed his anxiety to abolish this difference. James Cuthbert, an English seigneur in a French Canadian section of country, of wide views, like his father, was not slow in realizing the advantage to the state to be obtained by abolishing this uncalled for and dangerous difference, and was the first to bring the division under his command to petition the Lieutenant-Governor to permit them to assume the national colours.

HERALDIC CERTIFICATE OF FAMILY ARMS ISSUED TO HON. JAMES CUTHBERT IN 1778.

TALMAN FAMILY.

Sir Horace Walpole, in his "Anecdotes of Painting," says: "William Talman was born at West Larington in Wiltshire, where he had an estate; was comptroller of the works in the reign of King William. * * * He was an architect employed in considerable works. In 1671 he built Thoresby House in Nottinghamshire, burnt a few years ago; Dryham House in Gloucestershire, in 1698, Swallowfield in Berks (Diary of Henry, Earl of Clarendon, for whom it was built), and Chatsworth; the elegance and lightness of the latter front do great honor to the artist—the other sides are equally beautiful. The flight of steps by which you ascend from the hall to the apartments was thought noble enough by Kent to be borrowed for Holkham. His son, John Talman, resided much in Italy; made a large collection of prints and drawings, particularly of churches and altars, many of which were done by himself. * * *

*From The Dominion, Illustrated, 1st Aug., 1891.

A few of his drawings are in the library of the Antiquarian Society."

The Parish Register, of West Larington, Wiltshire, shows that "William Talman, y<sup>e</sup> son of Christopher Talman and Joana, his wife, was bap<sup>t</sup> Apl 5, 1663." The rector of West Larington writes that, owing to laxity in religious matters at the time, he thinks William, the architect, was about thirteen years old when he was baptized. He bought Felmingham manor, otherwise Felmingham Hall, about 1700, and in 1711 there is a petition of his to the Lord High Treasurer, praying permission to surrender his patent as Queen's waiter in her Majesty's customs, to his brother-in-law, James Tate, "who was fully qualified." This entry is minuted thus: "28 August, 1711. The oath must first be taken that no money or other consideration is given or promised to Mr. Talman."

William Talman's will is recorded in Register Shaller, fo. 44, Prerog. Court, Canterbury, 1720, by which it appears that he died at Felmingham Hall, Norfolk county. He mentions his wife, Hannah, and children: John, to whom he bequeathed his collection of prints, drawings and books for his life, £1,500, and his chambers in Gray's Inn; Hannah, who married John Green, Jr.; James, who married Elizabeth (buried at Felmingham in 1730, aged 25—tombstone), and Henry. Mr. J. S. Moore, of Richmond, who is a lineal descendant of the last-named writes: "The following is a copy of the inscription on the tomb, covered by a black marble slab, at the old church at Felmingham Hall, Norfolk county, England: 'Here Rests the bodies of William Talman, of Felmingham, Esq., who died Nov. 22, 1719, aged 69 years, and of Hannah his wife, who died Jan'y 4, 1729, aged 66 years.' I have also the inscriptions of two or three others of the family, one in Latin. Each one of the tombstones has a quaint monogram or device on it, which I would like to send you, but I am no draftsman. It is supposed the Talmans came over with William the Conqueror. (The shield of the family coat-of-arms is Norman, and the device on it indicates that the bearer was a crusader.)" The records of Norfolk county, England, state that "John Talman, of Grimstone parish in Norfolk, conveyed a parcel of land for charity by deed in 1394." The name also occurs in documents conveying sales of land in the 47th and 48th of Edward III., that is, in 1373, also in the 9th of Richard II., that is, in 1385, in Grimeston and adjoining parishes.

In Mobray's "Travels," occurs the following:

"By letters on board the 'Medway' in the East Indies, we have an account of the death of Mr. John Talman, only son of the late John Talman, Esq., famous for the best collections of prints, drawings, and particularly church ornaments, of any private gentleman in England, and grandson to William Talman, Esq., comptroller of all his Majesty's Buildings and Gardens in the reign of King William. He was a young gentleman of a sweet temper and disposition, and much lamented by all his friends and acquaintances. His estate, which is considerable, descends to his two sisters."

These two sisters were Frances Ann, and Mary, whose names are in Burke's Peerage. This John, the grandson of William (the architect), was never married. At Hinxworth, near Baldock, county Hertford, is a tomb to another John Talman, who was likewise a great traveler and "collector of curious paintings and drawings," who died November 3, 1726, aged forty years. His wife was Frances, daughter of John Cockayne, "of this parish, gent., who died March 22, 1732." Mr. Moore, who has made extensive researches in old wills and other records in England, writes that this John Talman was descended from Rev. John Talman, vicar of Salisbury Cathedral, who was first cousin of William, the architect.

HENRY TALMAN, of New Kent county, Virginia, had among his papers the original will of William Talman, the architect, and it was in existence shortly before the war, as proved by depositions sent to England. He was son of the architect, resided in St. Peter's parish, New Kent county, but spent much of his time on the sea as captain and owner of the ship "Vigo," running between Bristol and Virginia. Mr. Moore has in his possession a gold sleeve-button once worn by Capt. Henry Talman, and a quaint round walnut dining-table brought over in his ship, also his autograph to a bill of lading for goods shipped from Bristol in 1737-'38, to Wm. Cabell, to be discharged at Shockoe Warehouse on James River. Mr. Moore writes that Capt. Henry Talman married Ann Elizabeth Ballard, and died in London in 1775. He adds: "Capt. Henry Talman had three children,<sup>1</sup> one son, William, who was my grandmother's grandfather, and the ancestor of the Talmans now living in Virginia, and who married Elizabeth Hewlett; he had also two daughters, one married Hewlett, the other Bacon (John). William the son of Henry, had six children who lived to maturity: Nancy was my grandmother's mother, and married Robert Pollard, of New Kent county; Austin lived and died in Richmond; John lived and died at the old residence of his grandfather "Talmans" in New Kent county, and their descendants are still among us; Patsy married Boolington, their heirs are still in Virginia; James was a revolutionary soldier, and died, or was killed at Valley Forge; Hannah, the sixth <sup>1</sup>In the mutilated register of St. Peter's Parish, are the following entries:

"Martha, daughter of Henry and Ann Talman, birth, March 16, 1733."

"Rebecca, daughter of Henry and Ann Talman, birth, April 2, 1737."

"Henry, son of Henry and Anna Talman, born December 26, 1739."
[He died in childhood.]

"John, son of William and Elizabeth Talman, born Feb. 27, 1756."

"Elizabeth, daughter of William and Elizabeth Talman, born January 15, 1758."

"Anna (Hannah), daughter of William and Elizabeth Talman, born April 6, 1760."

"James, son of William and Elizabeth Talman, born June 17, 1767."

child, married a Turpin and moved to Savannah, Ga., and their descendants are still there. The coat-of-arms and family portraits in the division fell to Hannah, and were carried to Georgia as her lares, manes, and penates, and were destroyed by fire during the late war. The coat-of-arms was on parchment, and was framed. A copy was found a few years ago by one of the family in Georgia, a book-plate in a volume of Bertram's Travels: a Norman shield, the crest an arm in armor embowed, wielding a battle-axe. The vertical lines on the shield are crimson; on the chevron are three round silver coins (Byzantian), indicating that the bearer was a Crusader; above the chevron, on each side, are two daggers or swords, hilts up, points downward; at the base of the shield is also a sword, hilt down, point upward; the Norman shield indicates its antiquity and early origin; the motto is "In Fide et in Bello Fortis"—Faithful in friendship, strong in war! This crest, and motto, and shield, were not registered at the College of Arms in London. Sir Albert W. Woods, Rouge Dragon, says, in a letter to the writer, that many of the gentry never registered or recorded their coats-of-arms. Dr. W. T. Turpin, of Georgia, who was descended from Hannah Talman, had this coat-of-arms painted on his carriage doors. I have also a copy of it on an old letter-head."

LUCIUS CUTHBERT DEAD.*

After Short Illness the Venerable Minister Passed Away on Tuesday Afternoon.

The entire community was saddened when it was learned on Tuesday afternoon that Dr. Lucius Cuthbert had closed his eyes in eternal sleep. His death occurred about 1.30 o'clock and was as peaceful as was his life. During the morning he was apparently improving and for a while sat up and conversed with the members of his family and friends, and shortly after noon retired as was his custom to sleep awhile before dinner. When, about thirty minutes later his good and faithful wife went to wake him, she found that he was dead. In his sleep he had passed away. The acute attack of indigestion which the doctor suffered about ten days ago had affected his heart and the physicians who attended him expected that he would die in just such a manner. The doctor himself, though he was apparently improving, seemed to feel that the end was near and carefully arranged all his earthly affairs, even selecting those of his friends who should act as pallbearers at his funeral.

Dr. Cuthbert was a son of Lucius Cuthbert and Charlotte Fuller, of Beaufort, S. C., and was born in that city in 1833. He was a graduate of South Carolina College, and of Princeton Theological Seminary. When he was 21 years old his health was not very good and he moved to Aiken in May, 1854. In this same year he was ordained to the ministry by the Rev. Dr. Kendrick, in the Aiken Baptist church, and for quite a number of years succeeding this, he served this church as pastor.

In 1856 he married Miss Susan Margaret Mikell, of Edisto Island. Just after the war he was called to the Citadel Square Baptist church in Charleston and there served for two or three years, when, his health failing, he was compelled to return to Aiken. He again became pastor of the Aiken church, serving in connection therewith the churches at Williston, Elko and several smaller churches. When he first became pastor of the Aiken church, the building was a very old one and was deemed unsafe. Dr. Cuthbert worked zealously to secure funds to erect a new building and his efforts were crowned with success. Again in the seventies when the building was burned, Dr. Cuthbert assisted Dr. Browne, who was pastor at that time, in the work of rebuilding the church which now stands. For several years Dr. Cuthbert served the First Baptist Church in Charleston. He was a most eloquent preacher, in fact, was considered by many to be the best pulpit orator in the South. He was many times called to serve some of the large churches in Baltimore and other large cities, but was unable to accept owing to his health, which necessitated his residence in Aiken. He served the Aiken church at three different periods during his ministry of half a century.

The funeral services were held at the Baptist church Wednesday afternoon. Seldom has such a concourse of people gathered in Aiken to pay respect to the dead. Of all creeds and from all the walks of life came the friends of the deceased to participate in the last sad rites.

The active pall-bearers were: Messrs. D. S. Henderson, C. K. Henderson, J. U. Rives, Dr. B. H. Teague, Dr. D. H. Quattlebaum, and Mr. J. T. Shuler. The honorary pall-bearers were: Messrs J. F. Seigler, Jos. Brunson, G. C. Moseley, E. H. Busch, W. M. Jordan, A. J. Burckhalter, Louis Staubes, and Jesse Moseley of Charleston.

The Revs. T. W. Clift, W. J. Snyder, F. D. Jones, J. C. Browne and P. J. McLean participated in the conduct of the ceremonies. Particularly touching were the remarks of the Rev. J. C. Browne, who had been the friend and comrade of the deceased for many years. He stated that twenty years had passed since he first met Dr. Cuthbert, and that each year he had learned to love him more and more. That Dr. Cuthbert had been pastor of the Aiken Baptist church at three different periods, and during the last two periods had been his pastor. That Dr. Cuthbert possessed a most sympathetic nature and easily made friends. Referring to his oratorical powers, he told of how he had often been thrilled by his eloquent sermons, and then he feelingly spoke of his piety, of his child-like faith and his sympathy for all who were troubled. With tears in his eyes the venerable preacher said: "And when I think of the life through which we have traveled together and of the good he has done, I can hardly repress the exclamation 'My father, my father! The chariot of Israel and the horsemen thereof.' A great and good man is gone, after laboring here and preaching the glorious Gospel of the Son of God for half a century. I thank God for such a life and the good influence it exercised upon the lives of others."

Rev. P. J. McLean characterized Dr. Cuthbert as a man of God and a man of prayer. He told of how when he first came to Aiken Dr. Cuthbert met him at the depot and welcomed him to the city, and of how he had since that time enjoyed the friendship and fellowship of this good and noble man. He remarked on the similarity in appearance between Dr. Cuthbert and Premier Gladstone, and eloquently pictured Dr. Cuthbert as he would on Sundays arise and seemingly gather all the wants of his fellow-beings and beseech God to grant them. He referred to the number of homes that would be lonesome now that the Doctor had passed away, and the number of men who would miss the clasp of the hand that was now closed in death. "No more will he be seen upon the streets because today he walks the streets of God's new city." He told of how during the Doctor's last illness he had been impressed by the number of negroes who daily inquired as to his condition, inquired because they knew that the Doctor loved them; in the fullness of his good heart, loved both black and white.

Dr. Plunkett, of Augusta, was expected to be present and take part in the services, but was unavoidably detained.

At the cemetery the services were concluded and the body laid to rest beneath a bank of beautiful flowers, the gifts of many friends.

Among the relatives who came to attend the funeral services were Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Roach, Mr. J. Cuthbert Roach and Miss Fannie Cuthbert Roach, of Charleston; Mr. Townsend Mikell, of Edisto Island; Dr. Pinckney Mikell, of Columbia; Mrs. Duncan Robertson and Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Moseley, of Charleston.

LUCIUS CUTHBERT, D. D.

The Rev. Lucius Cuthbert, D. D., died at his home in Aiken yesterday after a brief illness; but what we call death was to him only the beginning of life everlasting. One of his last messages from the pulpit was delivered at the First Baptist church, in this city, about three weeks ago. It was filled with hope and love and consolation for his faithful people, to whom he had ministered for years, and with unutterable longing for the eternal existence into which he has entered. The faith of Peter and the ever patient and forgiving eyes of the Master was the theme of his discourse. He preached as he had seldom preached before, and as if he were conscious that in a little while he would reach the end of his journey and lie down to rest forever. Those who heard him marvelled at his preaching; at the clearness of his thought, and the irresistible power of his eloquence. It was an old man, for fifty years a minister of the Christian religion, pleading with his people to be reconciled to God and at the end praying that upon them and the church which he loved with all his heart, the love and mercy and grace of God might abide until the whole of the ransomed host of God's elect had crossed over into the heavenly country.

Dr. Cuthbert was a charming man, eminent for his learning and piety, and true to every obligation of the highest and purest citizenship. He was trained in theology at Princeton and was a preacher of uncommon gifts. He was a great favorite with the young people and much respected by all who knew him. His manners were delightful and he always had a good word for every one. He believed that religion ought to make men happy, that there is something good in every situation, that the gospel of dark despair, and that the pleasant things of earth are to be regarded as only a foretaste of the joys of Heaven. Having lived well and uprightly, he lay down at the last and passed on into the other life, his eyes having seen by faith something of the glory which has now been revealed unto him.*

POTTER.

ARMS: Sable, a fesse ermine between three cinquefoils, or.

CREST: a seahorse naiant proper.

MOTTO: Pax et veritas.

The Potters of Mount Potter, an Irish family, was represented in America by John Potter, born April 12, 1675, at Ballymorán, County Down, Ireland, at the residence of his grandfather, Sir John Stewart of Ballymorán.

He was the son of James Potter and Catharine Stewart, daughter of Sir John Stewart, of Ballymorán, and went to Charleston, South Carolina, Dec. 15, 1784.

John Potter married Catharine Fuller, b. 1770, of Beaufort, S. C., on August 22, 1791, daughter of †Col. Thomas Fuller by his wife, Catharine Foley, whom he married in 1773.

Colonel Thomas Fuller was the son of Richard Fuller and Mary Drayton, daughter of ‡Thomas Drayton and Anne

†On Sunday the 7th Thomas Fuller, Esq., of St. Andrew's Parish, was married at Ashley Ferry to Mrs. Elizabeth Miles, relict of Mr. Edward Miles (Monday, Sept. 15, 1766). She died 1769.

‡Last Thursday, Thomas Foley, Esq., Commander of his Majesty's Ship, the Escorte, was married to Miss Catharine Mellichamp, a daughter of Mr. Thomas Mellichamp, who made such useful discoveries a few years ago, in the manufacturing of indigo.

(Monday, November 5, 1764) S. C. Marriage Notices, by Salley.

‡The first Thomas Drayton went from Barbadoes and settled on Cape Fear River, North Carolina, in 1679, and about 1680 removed to South Carolina. He married Ann Cattell, daughter of Stephen Fox, and had:

- I. Mary Drayton, married Richard Fuller.
- II. Thomas Drayton, married Elizabeth Bull.
- III. John Drayton.

Cattell, née Fox, daughter of Stephen Fox. Mary Drayton was sister of Hon. Thomas Drayton and of John Drayton. John Potter and Catharine Fuller had :

- I. James Potter, a wealthy planter on the Savannah River, b. Aug. 29, 1793, married Jan. 4, 1827, Sarah Jones Grimes, daughter of Dr. John Grimes, of Georgia, and Catharine Jones Glen, daughter of Hon. John Glen, Chief Justice of Georgia, and Sarah, daughter of Dr. Noble Wymberly Jones, an ardent patriot of the Revolutionary War, son of Hon. Colonel Noble Jones, of His Majesty's Council in Georgia. We thus see that the Potters descend from the ancient families of Drayton and Fuller, of South Carolina, and this line also from the families of Noble Jones, Glen and Grimes, of Georgia, and from the Stewarts, of Scotland.
- II. Elizabeth Charlotte Potter, died Aug. 25, 1796.
- III. William Henry Potter, d. Jan. 30, 1827; American Naval Officer.
- IV. *Harriet Maria Potter, married March 4, 1823, Commodore Robert Field Stockton, grandson of Richard Stockton, signer of the Declaration of Independence. Issue.

CUTHBERTS OF PHILADELPHIA.

The first ancestor of this branch of Cuthbert was John Cuthbert, who went to Pennsylvania from Castle Hill, Inverness, Scotland, in 1715. He brought with him his son, Thomas Cuthbert, a boy of two years of age, who was born in 1713, at Castle Hill, Inverness, Scotland, and died in Philadelphia, January 11, 1781, and was buried in Christ Church cemetery. This Thomas Cuthbert was a man of prominence, and was successively vestryman and warden of Christ Church and on committee to revise the book of common prayer in 1776.

He married in 1741 Ann Wilkinson, b. 1720, daughter of Anthony Wilkinson, son of Gabriel Wilkinson, who came from England in 1660. The issue of this marriage was Anthony Cuthbert, b. Philadelphia, March 4, 1751, who was Captain of Sixth Company of Philadelphia, and as Lieutenant commanded the Delaware at Trenton, and was present at battle of Princeton. Captain Anthony Cuthbert married, 1st, Sarah Dixon and had a daughter, who married a Perceval. He married, 2d, December 19, 1799, a daughter of Joseph Ogden, son of David Ogden, of London, England, who came to America with William Penn.

There was another branch of Cuthbert closely connected with this line, who moved from Inverness, Scotland, to London, England, and who for a long time occupied a good position near London. This branch moved to North Carolina and one of the line went to Georgia, the other moving to Philadelphia, Pa.

Captain Anthony Cuthbert and Miss Ogden had beside others:

Samuel Cuthbert married 2nd Eugenia B. Jones, daughter of Charles G. Jones (of the ancient family of Johns, of New York), who married Mary Persiana McIntosh, daughter of Major Lachlan McIntosh, of Georgia, son of Col. William McIntosh, eldest son of John More McIntosh, of the Borlum branch of the great McIntosh family.

Eugenia B. Jones and Samuel Cuthbert had issue:

- I. Charles McIntosh Cuthbert, m. Lilly D. Morgan.
- II. George Cuthbert.
- III. Anne McIntosh Cuthbert, m. Dr. John Rothwell.
- IV. Eugenia Johns Cuthbert.

Charles McIntosh Cuthbert and Lilly D. Morgan had:

1. Lachlan McIntosh Cuthbert.
2. Olie Morgan Cuthbert, m. Dr. Fahlen.
3. Charles Morgan Cuthbert.

Anne McIntosh Cuthbert and Dr. John D. Rothwell had:

1. Eugenia Rothwell.

NOTE ON HEYWARD, PAGE 56.—It would appear that Mrs. George C. Heyward, néé Margaret Doar, descends also, besides those given from another family of Smith, for we gather the following from the S. C. Historical and Genealogical Magazine: William Smith, an early settler in South Carolina, married about 1690 Elizabeth Schenkingh, daughter of Bernard Schenkingh, Esq., Sheriff of Berkley, and a Proprietor's Deputy in the Grand Council (a highly honorable position). William Smith and Elizabeth Schenkingh had, besides others, William Smith, who married Elizabeth Williamson and had, besides others, Margaret Smith, who married Thomas Evance.

NOTE, PAGE 42.—Mrs. Obadiah Bruen Brown (wife of Rev. Obadiah Brown) was Mrs. Jackson, who was born Elizabeth Reilly.

1784. Ga. Gazette, Thursday, May 20. On Thursday last was married Major Lachlan McIntosh (son of Col. William McIntosh) to Mrs. Mary Nash, relict of Capt. Clement Nash of this State.
1794. Ga. Gazette, Thursday, Feb. 13. Married last Thursday, John Peter Ward, Esq., to Miss Hetty McIntosh, daughter of Gen. Lachlan McIntosh.
1797. Columbian Museum, Friday, Nov. 10. Died on the 28th. of August last, near the middle ferry, on Schuylkill, Mrs. Mary Persiana McIntosh, the wife of Maj. Lachlan McIntosh, late of Sunbury.
1798. Ga. Gazette, Friday, Jan. 12. Died on Tuesday last, at Great Ogeechee, Mr. John Butler Maxwell.
1801. Ga. Gazette, Thursday Feb. 19. Married on Sunday, the 8th. inst., in Bryan Co., Maj. Lachlan McIntosh to Mrs. Mary Maxwell.
1809. Will of Sarah Persiana Maxwell, widow of Thomas Maxwell, of Hester's Bluff, Liberty Co., Ga., dated July 4. Mentions her grandchildren, Mary Persiana McIntosh and Sarah Anne McIntosh, daughters of Major Lachlan McIntosh and Mary Persiana McIntosh.
1823. Will of Mrs. Mary McIntosh, mother of Miss Maria, dated Jan. 4. Property to her daughter, Maria J. McIntosh and son John B. Maxwell, and left legacy to "daughter-in-law", Hester McIntosh. She evidently meant step-daughter.

Some confusion having arisen in regard to the two Lachlans of McIntosh family the author finds it necessary to make the corrections, as since printing the book he has gotten hold of valuable information.

Genl. Lachlan McIntosh married only once, to Sarah Threemcraft and in will dated Jan. 21, 1802, says "I give and bequeth to my wife, Sarah, all that island called Doboy and says "my youngest daughter, Catherine McCauley Harris, the wife of Charles Harris of Savannah, "my son-in-law, John Peter Ward, " "my sons, George and Hampden McIntosh, and my daughter Esther Ward, son Henry McIntosh whom I have amply provided for:" so that the mistake on pages 84-85 is in making him having married twice and placing Miss Maria J. McIntosh and Annie as his daughters who were children of his nephew, Major Lachlan McIntosh. Hampden McIntosh, son of Genl. Lachlan McIntosh, married Catherine Clifford Wepher and had issue, sons who died without issue and two daughters-- Mary McIntosh who married Rev. Dennis Mervyn Winston and had Fredrick H. Winston and Susan and Lucy Winston; and Maria McIntosh who married William Mell and had issue-- Mrs. Wakelee, Geo. Mell and Mrs. Felligant. Hon. John E. Ward was a son of William Ward and Annie, daughter of Maj. Lachlan McIntosh. Annie McIntosh one of these sisters, married Wm. Ward and had Hon. John E. Ward and others. Lachlan McIntosh eldest son of Major Lachlan McIntosh, son of Col. Wm. McIntosh and Mary Mackay, was also a major and married Susan Anne Green Wall, and had:

I Lachlan McIntosh who married Miss Richards.

So to make it clear and correct all errors, it will be seen that Genl. Lachlan McIntosh only married once to Sarah Threadcraft, and had the issue given on pages 84-85, except those of 2nd. marriage, and that Hampden McIntosh was the only son whose issue is living to this day. His daughters were Mrs. Winston and Mrs. Mell. That he, Genl. McIntosh, had a nephew, Major Lachlan McIntosh, son of Col. Wm. and Mary Mackay; and that Major Lachlan McIntosh was a major on the staff of Genl. Clement Nash during the Revolutionary War and married 2nd. time the widow of Genl. Nash; and that the said Major Lachlan married also 3 more times as given, unless it be that Mrs. Nash was Mary Iersiana Maxwell, who she probably was. By Euphenia Baillie there appears to have been no issue. It is also now clear that his eldest son was also a Major Lachlan, who married a Miss Wall and had also Major Lachlan McIntosh, and Genl. Lachlan's sons left no male issue except Hamilton, nor did sons of his son, Hamilton McIntosh.

The confusion has arisen on account of the two Lachlans, uncle and nephew, and on account of two wards having married into the family. (See pages 75, 76, 84 & 85). The captain there spoken of on page 75 is Major Lachlan McIntosh. It was George McIntosh, son of John Mohr who married a daughter of Sir Patrick Houston. On page 100, date of marriage of Jane W. Farnin is wrong as it was much later; and on page 37 Alex. Horatio, Frances Jane and Jane Catherine Baillie are children of David Baillie and Lady Louisa Stewart the numbers should be drawn out to separate them from brother's children. On page 35 it is stated that Colin Campbell-Mackay and Rosina Berry had no issue, whereas they have two children, a daughter Mary, and a son, James Mackay, heir of line. On the same page read Geo. Mackay of Island Hunda. Hettie daughter of Genl. Lachlan married first Peter Ward, second Dr. Bayard, and has a living descendent. Mrs. Eckard not Eckore.

"MCINTOSH, CHIEF OF BORLUM"

As in my Baillie of Dunain, a branch of McIntosh of Borlum was left out, the following contribution to this illustrious line of "The Fighting McIntosh", is inserted, a family to whom Georgia is much indebted for services in all the wars. Major William Jackson McIntosh, eldest son of Genl. John McIntosh and Sarah Swinton, married Maria Hilkey and had 11 children:

1. Rev. Wm. Hilkey McIntosh, now dead, but late chief of Borlum, married several times and left issue, daughters only.
11. McQueen McIntosh, formerly U. S. Judge of District Court, married Georgia Fannin, daughter of Major A. B. Fannin and Jane, daughter of John P. Williamson and had:
  1. Georgia McIntosh.
  2. Thomas Hamilton McIntosh, dead.
  3. McQueen McIntosh, "Chief of Borlum".
  4. Jessie McIntosh, m. A. J. Graeffe.
111. John McIntosh,
- IV. George Baillie McIntosh,
- V. Sarah Bolding,
- VI. Agnes McIntosh,
- VII. Maria McIntosh,
- VIII. Mazie McIntosh,
- IX. Anne McIntosh,
- X. Donald Mackay McIntosh, m. Harleston Bryan,
- XI. Thomas Spalding McIntosh, married a lady now Mrs. Madden. He was killed at Sharpsburg, Ind., Adjutant McLaw's Division. Donald Mackay McIntosh married Harleston Bryan (now Mrs. P. O. Walter, of Waynesville, N. C.), and had:
  1. Rutledge, died in infancy,
  2. Wm. Jackson, died in infancy.
  3. Harley Bryan, died in infancy,
  4. Donald Mackay McIntosh, m. Carrie L. Lenkford, of Brevard, N. C. had:
    - A. Walter McIntosh, m. Doloren Candalaria Casanova, of Havana, Cuba, April 23, 1899,
    - B. Rutledge McIntosh,
    - C. Minnie Chisholm McIntosh,
    - D. Evelyn Sprague McIntosh,
    - E. Anna Eckel McIntosh,
    - F. Carrie Louise McIntosh,
    - G. Spalding McIntosh,
    - H. Donald McIntosh,
- N. B. - All alive and of Waynesville, N. C., and all of Ga. McIntosh of Borlum. One of Rev. Wm. McIntosh's daughters married one of the Dunwodys of Ga.

Lachlan McIntosh and so on of Col. William McIntosh and Mary Mackay, married four times: 1st Miss McIntosh of South Carolina; 2nd, Euphemia Baillie a cousin, by whom he had Maria who died young; 3rd. Mrs. Mary Nash, widow of Capt. Clement Nash, and daughter of Thomas and Sarah Persiana Maxwell of Mester's Bluff in Georgia; 4th. Mrs. Mary Maxwell, daughter of James Maxwell by whom he had:

Maria J. McIntosh, authoress,
Major Lachlan McIntosh by Mrs. Mary Nash had:

1. Lachlan McIntosh, m. Miss Wall,

U. S. Navy, m. Miss Wilson,
- V. Mary Persiana McIntosh, m. Charles
Gardner Jones of an old New York family.

Lachlan McIntosh and Miss Wall had:

1. Major Lachlan McIntosh of Confederate States Army, m. Miss Richards.
d.s.p.
11. Mary McIntosh, d.s.p.

Sarah Anne McIntosh and William Ward had:

1. John Elliott Ward, U. S. Minister to China, married Miss Sullivan.
11. Louisa Ward married Mr. Winn.

John E. Ward and Miss Sullivan, daughter of Gen. Sullivan of Boston Mass. had:

1. Lachlan McIntosh Ward, issue 1 child
11. James Montford Ward, m. 1st Miss
Biddle of Phila., Pa., and 2nd Miss
Johnson with issue.
111. Louisa Ward,
- IV. Annie Ward,

Commodore James Mackay McIntosh and Miss Wilson had:

1. Dallas McIntosh, d.s.p.,
11. Maria J. McIntosh, m. Fairley Cox, issue two sons,
111. Mary McIntosh, d.s.p.,
- IV. Evelyn McIntosh, m. Cleveland, issue
- V. Harriet McIntosh, d. s.p.

Mary Persiana McIntosh and Charles G. Jones had:

- I. Eugenia B. Jones, m. Samuel Cuthbert of an old Philadelphia, Pa. family descended from Cuthbert of Inverness, Scotland.
- II. Eugene C. Jones, m. and left two sons.

Eugenia B. Jones and Samuel Cuthbert had:

- I. Charles McIntosh Cuthbert, m. Lilly D. Morgan,
- II. George Cuthbert,

Appraisal of Personal Property of Set dec'd, 21st August 1789.

Having published the book on Cuthbert, I am it will not be necessary to go further into simply publish this corroborative evidence as to its history. Dr. James Cuthbert distinctly the lands of Castle Hill to his son George and children and as we have seen his uncles Dr. J.
Edisto, S. C., and the Abbe Cuthbert of Paris lift all debts over the estate.

Now as to the line of Seth John Cuthbert it is doubt that they were of a family of Cuthbert, for in the Darien Georgia Settlement a place
the Scots from Inverness located, we find Is.
Cuthbert. Now the wills prove that Seth John
Isaac and Alexander Daniel Cuthbert the latter Brigade, Continental Line, Rev. War.

Will of Isaac Cuthbert dated May 5, 1809, now
Alexander I. Cuthbert, nephews Alfred and John Will Alexander Daniel Cuthbert dated August wife, nephews John and Alfred Cuthbert and E.
Baker. See also records in Pension Office, which will clearly show who he was. He was Brigade, Rev. War.

Obituary Notice, died at Sunbury on May 22,
Isaac Cuthbert, a man distinguished for courage which conduct in a varied life was ever dignified (Saw both Republican and Evening News). Settled the locality settled by the Scots from Inverness Hon. Seth John Cuthbert a distinguished citizen married Mary Clay and had:

- I. Alfred Cuthbert
- II. John A. Cuthbert

We thus are pleased that we have not only been important information but also to have located Hon. Seth John Cuthbert. The S. C. Branch of is now heir male of Castle Hill. Note: The

CHATHAM (continued)

Appraisal of personal property of Seth John Cathbert, dec'd, 21st of August 1789.

Having published the book on Cathbert, Barons of Castle Hill, it will not be necessary to go further into the matter but simply publish this corroborative evidence as a further addition to its history. Dr. James Cathbert distinctly in his will leaves the lands of Castle Hill to his son George and mentions his other children and as we have seen his uncles Dr. James Cathbert of Edisto, S. C., and the Abbe Cathbert of Paris, France agreed to lift all debts over the estate.

Now as to the line of Seth John Cathbert it now appears without doubt that they were of a family of Cathbert, Inverness, Scotland; for in the American Georgia Settlement a place near Savannah where the Scots from Inverness located, we find Isaac and Daniel Cathbert. Now the wills prove that Seth John Cathbert had brothers Isaac and Alexander Daniel Cathbert the latter in Georgia, Brigade, Continental Line, Rev. War.

Will of Isaac Cathbert dated May 5, 1809, mentions son William Alexander I. Cathbert, nee son Alfred and John Cathbert.

Will of Alexander Daniel Cathbert dated August 19, 1804, mentions wife, nee Mrs. John Alfred Cathbert nee Daniel and Ann Baker. See also records in Public Office, Washington, D. C. which will also show the burial of the latter in the Georgia Brigade, Rev. War.

Obituary Notice, died at Savannah, Sept. 25, 1800, of Isaac Cathbert, nee Daniel, died at Savannah, Georgia, while en route to the Georgia Settlement. (See also obituary notice in the Georgia Gazette, Savannah, Georgia, of the locality settling to the Georgia Settlement.)

Rev. Seth John Cathbert, Minister, died at Savannah, Georgia, and was buried in the Georgia Brigade, (S. C. Branch, Book)

I. Seth John Cathbert, S. C. Branch

II. Seth John Cathbert, S. C. Branch

We thus see from the above that the Cathberts were of a family of important influence but also to have located in the Georgia Settlement. The S. C. Branch of Castle Hill is now heir male of Castle Hill. Note: The records in the Georgia Gazette, Savannah, Georgia, of the Georgia Settlement.

in publishing the book on the Cuthberts, and their descendants in South Carolina, much valuable information has been gleaned which adds to the history of the family. It is a fact that the line of both John Cuthbert and the Cuthberts of Inverness Scotland, as in we find Alexander and Isaac Cuthbert, who are to be brothers of both John Cuthbert's. Besides all of this we have Captain John Cuthbert whose sister married first Honorable Patria Honorable James Bulloch.
